Radioactive rocks

By JOHN OUGH

Astronomical distances, incomprehensible in earthly miles, are measured by scientists in "light years" (each worth 6 trillion miles) and "parsecs" (worth about 30 trillion miles). Geologists, who study the earth's crust, also use figures that cannot easily be visualized: billion of years of elapsed time. Human minds, thinking back some confused when thinking back more than a few thousand years, are likely to become more so when considering the tens, hundreds and thousands of millions of years that have elapsed since the earth began about four and a half million years ago. This mental restriction is not surprising—man is a relative newcomer on this planet. In fact, if the Parliament Buildings' Peace Tower in Ottawa, which stands 390 feet high, were to represent the "Rock of Ages", the total length of time that man has been upon this earth could be indicated by a piece of half-inch placed on the top, and the two thousand years that have passed since the birth of Christ would make but a fine layer of dust on the plywood.

Geologists, through careful study of the remains of small marine creatures and algae from bygone seas, imbedded in rocks, have been able to find out the sequence of events and relative ages of many rocks. Where such fossils are found, some layers of rock have been dated back as far as a billion years (or just about down to the clock face on the Peace Tower scale). Now, geologists have found an elaborate modern tool which enables them to know the absolute age of rocks, not just their relative ages.

Most rocks contain amounts of radioactive elements. Physicists' studies have provided accurate figures of the half-life-decay phenomena of these various elements from which can be calculated the amount of spent matter that is produced by so much radioactive substance in a given period. Today, Canada's Geological Survey has developed laboratory techniques and equipment with which they are dating hundreds of rock samples each year with fine accuracy, finding the ages of some of the oldest rocks in the world—2,800,000,000 years old (getting nearly two-thirds of the way down the Peace Tower), by examination of their Potassium/Argon and Rubidium/Strontium ratios.

Radioactive age determination has suddenly thrown new light on the geological history of the earth. Fossils themselves are being dated through their carbon content so that now the painstaking building up of knowledge of the sequence of events during the last 50,000 years can be rigidly pegged down to a true scale of time. Even the date of the last Canadian ice age has been pegged from 25,000 years ago to 12,000 years by radioactive studies.

Exciting as such knowledge is to geologists and other scientists for its value in pure research, the absolute determination of rock ages is also packed with latent practical information. As theories give way to facts the true history of rocks, formations and regions will provide a solid framework on which to build up the pieces of knowledge stemming from other aspects of geologists' science. For the mineral prospector there will be additional clues to use in the search for economic deposits as the geologists make use of his new-found knowledge. Already, rock formations in varying regions of the country have been related to each other (and with formations in other countries) by common ages so that what has previously been discovered about one, by geologists and prospectors, through detailed field examination, can be adapted to another. This is especially important as the search for additional rich deposits of Canadian minerals becomes more pressing. Also, through finding the absolute ages of formations on a regional scale, the boundaries of the geological provinces—which bear no relation to man-made borders—have been more clearly defined across vast areas of Canada. As these boundaries are considered to be exceptionally good hunting grounds for mineral wealth, their exact positioning is a prime example of the value of age determination in the finding of orebodies.

Other fascinating uses of radioactivity in the laboratory have even more direct and practical applications for mineral discovery. In a greenhouse atop the Geological Survey of Canada building in Ottawa, various small trees are being grown in soils containing radioactive nutrients and trace elements of such metals as gold and zinc. Examination by sensitive geiger counters will show where such trace metals are concentrated in the plant structure and what types of vegetation a prospector-botanist should study in the field. This method might enable discovery of mineral deposits underlying soils that are diffused with minute quantities of large metal deposits contained in the rocks below. Even infinitesimal amounts of gold and platinum contained by plants are being detected by more delicate laboratory studies. These developments are expected to enable a scientist to carefully sift clues to rich deposits by intricate examination of plants brought to his laboratory from remote areas. Also, diffusion studies, which track the direction and rate of movement by mineral particles within their parent rocks, can be carried out with radioactive tracers. In this way the scientist-geologist will get inside information on the likely spots of concentration to which minerals have slowly moved over the millions of years.

Studying Four Million Square Miles and Half of Eternity

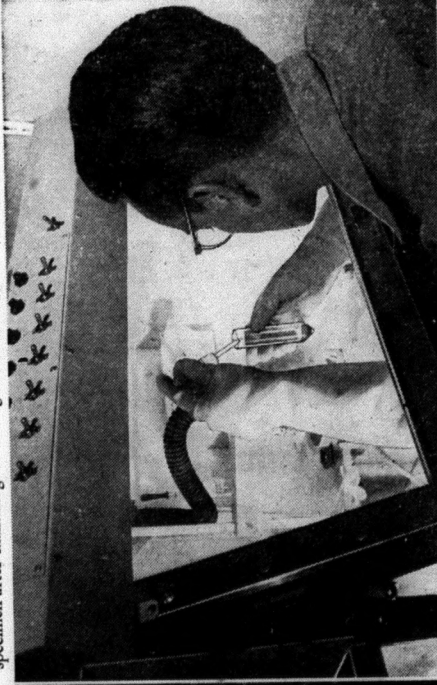

Radioactive Rocks Tell Canada's Secrets

Fragments of radioactive rocks from across Canada are telling the country's geologists that parts of Canada are nearly 3,000,000,000 years old. In the laboratories of the Geological Survey of Canada specimens of rock are analysed to find the amount of radioactive residue that has gradually formed in them over many millions of years. From these delicate measurements scientists pin down the actual ages of various rocks and learn more about Canada's geological history than ever before. Their new-found knowledge will add greatly to the future of the nation's vital mineral industry by helping prospectors look more successfully for rich mineral deposits. Other radioactive studies find what types of plants absorb such metals as gold and zinc when growing over mineral bodies. This study may bring a new type of prospector into the exploration field—a mineral seeker who collects plants instead of rock samples in his hunt for mineral wealth. Carbon Dioxide Storage and Filling System Chemical engineer Willie Dyck, of Saskatoon, freezes down carbon dioxide from a specimen after examining it in a large carbon counter.

Dr. R. A. Washington uses a dust-excluding glove-box while precipitating a radioactive substance in the radiochemical laboratory in Ottawa.

Geologists Alice Payne, of Edmonton, and Kathie Muirhead, Saskatoon, examine 1934-model geiger counter.

Geologist Hal Steacy, of Ottawa, checks the radioactivity of a rock sample with a scintillation counter before it is used for age determination.

Bill Smith, from Rouyn, Que., uses mica to separate a sample's argon content during research in high-vacuum preparation laboratory.

How to avoid tick bites

The best way to prevent tick bites is . . . to steer clear of ticks.

There is no satisfactory control for this pest, three species of which can make life miserable for Canadians, says J. D. Gregson, of the federal research station at Kamloops, British Columbia.

The villains: the Pacific tick, the Rocky Mountain wood tick and the American dog tick.

First and most effective rule in avoiding bites is simply to stay away from known infested areas during the active tick season, the researcher points out.

For those who do not find this feasible, ifr. Gregson has some future suggestions:

Wear high boots, with trousers tucked into the socks.

Wear a smooth jacket tucked into the trousers.

Avoid loose woollen garments on which ticks are difficult to spot.

Since most ticks crawl in one direction—upwards—they usually arrive near the head. Consequently, says Mr. Gregson, the collar area should be examined closely and the hair combed carefully after a trip in the country. At night, clothing should be hung on the back of a chair. This will likely bring any undetected ticks to the top of the garments.

The domain of the Rocky Mountain wood species extends from the lower British Columbia dry belt eastwards to Saskatchewan. It is active from February to May, but particularly so 'n April. Although it may transmit several diseases, it is known especially for the transient paralysis it induces in humans and livestock.

The American dog tick, which is found from Saskatchewan to Nova Scotia, so far has not been known to spread disease to humans. Otherwise it is similar in habits and appearance to the other two species.

The Pacific tick is found in lucky west coast areas. It is active in the adult stage mainly during the spring and autumn rainy seasons. Characteristic of a bite from this species is the difficulty in removing the relatively long mouthparts from the skin, and an unpleasant, slow-healing sore.

SEAT BELTS A MUST IN B.C.

Legislation was introduced in the British Columbia legislature under which all 1964 cars must be equipped with seat belts for the driver after October 1st. The proposed legislation puts the onus of installing the belts on the auto dealers.

According to B.C. Attorney General Robert W. Bonner, "It is not possible to force people to use seat belts but only to make it obligatory to have seat belts installed on all new cars."

THE Arnold PALMER METHOD

THE 'TIGHT' RIGHT ELBOW

In days past, golf professionals occasionally relied up a hand towel and placed it under the upper part of a pupil's right arm. The pupil was then told to swing without allowing the towel to drop.

This attempt to keep the right elbow close to the player's body on the backswing is less prominent in modern teaching.

The emphasis now is on making certain that this elbow returns to the player's side early on the downswing (illustrations 1 and 2 as opposed to illustration 3).

This tight elbow position on the downswing prevents premature straightening of the right arm which would dissipate clubhead speed. It also prevents heel shots that would result if the clubhead were allowed to move out beyond the ball.

ONLY NINE DAYS REMAINS IN P.S.I. CAMPAIGN

The P.S.I. sponsored Hastings and Prince Edward Community Health Plan will close Saturday, August 10th, at 12 noon. No extension of the deadline date will be possible and according to P.S.I. officials no applications will be accepted following the closing date.

Mr. Douglas Brown, spokesman for the plan has advised this newspaper that the enrollment has been one of the most successful campaigns carried out by P.S.I. Mr. Brown has been extremely pleased with the response from the residents of Hastings and Prince Edward. The residents have shown a great deal of interest in this campaign and they have certainly given it their support.

With only nine days left for permanent residents to enrol in this comprehensive coverage, Mr. Brown sincerely hopes that every resident wishing information on the coverage, does not hesitate but contacts one of the information centres for complete details on the plan or to see a representative. The canvass that has been carried out since the opening day, Monday, June 17th, 1963, has now all but been completed and any resident who has not been contacted is urged to contact one of the offices in either Belleville, Trenton or Picton and arrangements will be made to give them the information they require. These offices will remain open Monday through Friday from 9 until 5 and on Saturday, August 10th until 12 noon to allow for last minute applications.

Can Cancer be Prevented?

Out of the mass of comparatively small discoveries bearing upon the causes and possible cures for cancer, there has emerged one enormous and dazzling statement: cancer is largely preventable. According to a National Health Week release, an increasing amount of attention is being given to the prevention of disease, even though prevention is less glamorous than many aspects of the treatment of disease, and cancer is no exception.

Dr. R. M. Taylor, executive vice-president of the Canadian Cancer Society, believes that fully 70 percent of all cancer might be prevented. "There is more potential gain to be made by prevention than through any method of treatment devised so far," he says. He bases his opinion largely on the wide variation in prevalence of different types of cancer in different parts of the world. If science could find out why cervical cancer is found less frequently in Jewish than in Christian women, why the incidence of cancer is low in Japan, why a type of cancer called lymphoma which is rare among children in Africa does not occur above an altitude of 5,000 feet above sea level, why the South African Bantu has an incidence of cancer which is half that of members of the white races living in the same area, this information could be put to use throughout the world's populations and bring about what might be considered an irreducible minimum for each type of cancer. This, according to Dr. Taylor, would cut Canada's death toll from cancer—23,650 in 1961—by about two-thirds.

Another obvious means of preventing cancer is to avoid noxious substances which have been indicated as leading to cancer. The chewing of the betel nut, for example, with or without tobacco, is widespread in the Orient and has apparently produced an abnormally high incidence of mouth cancer. A comparatively high incidence of cancers of the bladder has been found among workers exposed to chemicals in certain dye manufacturing industries. And the incidence of skin cancer is very high among whites in Australia due to prolonged exposure to the tropical sun.

"Of course," says Dr. Taylor, "once findings become available, it is up to the public to take advantage of them. Unfortunately, this has not been the case with lung cancer. There is an overwhelming collection of fact and opinion which incriminates cigarette-smoking as a prime cause of lung cancer. And yet the Canadian consumption of cigarettes is apparently increasing."

The Canadian Cancer Society's attack upon cancer takes three main forms: research, education and welfare services. The Society backs research by contributing more than 80 percent of the funds allocated by its affiliated group, the National Cancer Institute of Canada, for this purpose. Since 1947 a total of $11,400,000 has been made available for research projects and facilities.

In 1963, 42.8 percent of the Society's budget will be spent on research. Education and welfare services will account for the next largest portion—40.8 percent. The Society's educational efforts are largely concerned with impressing upon the public the need to recognize cancer symptoms and start treatment early because it has been shown over and over again that the patient's chances of surviving an attack of cancer are infinitely better when treatment is begun early in the course of the disease.

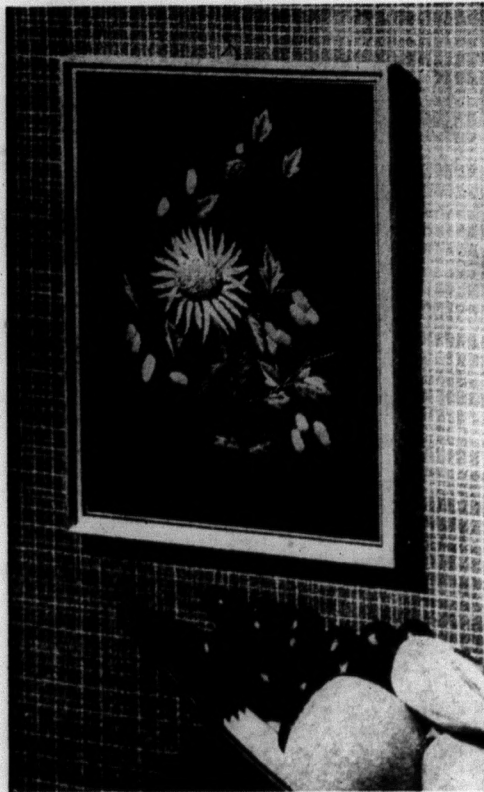

The Society's only sources of income are voluntary contributions and bequests. This year it needs $3,682,000 to carry on its three-pronged assault on this age-old disease.

WHITEFISH FRY

Some 12 million whitefish fry are being planted in three saline lakes in north central Saskatchewan. Whitefish stocking is undertaken every two years in the three lakes which support commercial fish production. Excessive water salinity prevents natural reproduction which occurs in most commercially fished lakes.

BABY IN AUGUST: Jaceline Kennedy has gone into semi-seclusion to await the birth in August of her third child. The child will be the first to be born to White House occupants since Grover Cleveland's time. The U.S.'s first lady had somewhat curtailed her public activities some time ago, and rumors had been rife in Washington that she was expecting. But no one had the nerve to say it aloud until the official announcement was made.

Woman's Way

MADELINE LEVASON

WHEAT AND TEXTILES

All foreign countries seem to think the Canadian climate produces an insatiable demand for clothing and textiles. Everybody that buys something from Canada seems to demand that we buy more textiles in return.

The rather bitter comment of the St. Johns, Quebec, News that Canada's national image abroad should be revised to "hewers of wood, drawers of water and users of textiles—other people's textiles" is typical of many aroused by the wheat sales negotiations with Red China. The Chinese have let it be known that if we expect to sell them our grain, we have to buy more from them. What they have to sell turns out to be textiles.

The Japanese are old hands at this kind of bargaining. Trade talks with Japan invariably start out with discussions of how Japanese exports to Canada can be diversified to cause less disruption to Canadian industry, but they always end up with demands that we absorb more Japanese clothing and textiles. Even the Koreans are trying to drum up Canadian business in—naturally—textiles.

Canada has an excellent textile industry of her own. That it is the second largest employer of manufacturing labor in the country, makes odd the fact that the Canadian market should be given away a bit at a time to foreigners in the name of better business.

In the first place, the Red Chinese are not doing us any favors by buying wheat. Drought and famine have forced them to shop for grain and if they could get any better qualities at better prices anywhere else, we can be sure they would shop elsewhere.

The prospects of China as a long-term grain customer are not considered bright. So if Canada is pressured into making new trade concessions by throwing her markets open to Chinese textiles, the home industry, or those other countries already selling here, must obviously suffer.

No one is suggesting that imports be barred from the Canadian market. What is asked is a firm decision on how much of the domestic markets will be kept for our own industries, and how much will be given over to low-cost goods from foreign shores.

Drinking habits remain steady

Canadians drank exactly the same amount of beer in 1962 as they did 10 years ago, according to final figures on last year's per capita consumption released by Dominion Brewers Association, national trade organization of the brewing industry.

The average Canadian drank 13.56 gallons of beer or ale in 1962, and exactly the same amount in 1952 — which may indicate steadiness of character on the part of the beer drinker, or the fact that he determined his true capacity with scientific exactitude 10 years ago.

He also shows remarkable fidelity to his favorite type of beer: whether it was ale, lager, porter or stout, the Brewers Association says. During the past six years that records have been kept on this, the preference has changed only one percentage point: in 1957 some 65 percent preferred ale, 34 percent lager, and one percent porter and stout; in 1962 ale dropped one percent to 64 percent, which lager picked up, bringing it to 35 percent. Porter and stout remained at one percent.

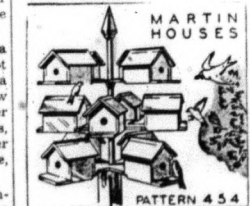

Slightly less Canadian beer was exported in 1962 than in 1961: 121,643 barrels (of 25 imperial gallons) compared with 123,352 barrels in 1961. Main customers were the United States and the Bahamas; smaller amounts were exported to some of the Caribbean islands.

According to the 1961 census, distribution of Canada's population in that year was 69.6 percent urban and 30.4 percent rural.

NEW CONTAINERS

Can-openers may soon become as obsolete as the wash-board or the button-hook. An item recently introduced at the Packing Exhibition held annually in Paris was a can sealed with a strip of plastic. All you do to open it is pull the tab, in the same way you remove the wrapper from a cigarette pack.

According to reports, the can was one of the most successful items at the show. In view of this, perhaps the phrase "cooking with a can-opener" will change to "cooking with plastics". Lucky the bride of the next generation!

The cocky young salesman waited long for a bus on a hot day. When he finally pulled in, he remarked to the driver, "Well, howdy, Noah. You made it. Is the ark full?" "No sir," replied the driver. "We've got room for another monkey. Step aboard."

A new vehicle is announced that rides on a bubble of air. We'd settle for one that rode on a teaspoonful of gasoline.

Assistant: "No, madam, we haven't had any for quite a long time."

Manager (overhearing): Oh, yes, we have, madam. I will just send to the warehouse and have some brought in for you." (Aside to assistant: "Never refuse anything; send out for it!")

As the lady went out laughing, the manager demanded of the assistant: "What did she say?"

Assistant: "She said, 'We haven't had any rain lately.'"

Uncle Sam takes a big hunk of our pay to balance his budget and this makes it harder for us to budget the balance.

A survey by the Canadian Peace Research Institute shows that two out of three Canadians approve grain sales to Mainland China. The survey sampled the attitudes of 1000 Canadians.

Policeman: "You were exceeding 60, went through three red lights and you're going the wrong way on a one-way street."

Driver's wife: "Don't pay any attention to him, officer. He's been drinking."

Asked to define "medieval" a college freshman wrote: "Partly bad."

A visiting business man was describing his country to his hostess. "Our most popular sport is bull-fighting," he told her.

"Isn't it revolting?" she asked. "No," replied the man with a faint smile. "That's the second most popular sport."

A bald-headed barber was trying to sell his customer a bottle of hair tonic.

"But how can you expect to sell it when you don't have any hair yourself?" asked the customer.

"Nothing wrong with that," came the answer: "I know a guy who sells brassieres."

Selling Canada

After the election, as before it, Canada's most pressing economic problem is essentially a sales problem: she must sell more—much more—abroad, and quickly, if she is to maintain her living standards and create sufficient productive job opportunities for her rapidly expanding labor force.

This is the stark warning implicit in "Operation World Markets," Ottawa's latest and most ambitious trade promotion drive which moves into high gear this month. We would all of us be well advised to recognize it.

In particular, the need to significantly increase foreign sales of our labour-intensive manufactured goods, the products of Canadian factories. It is not too much to say that success or failure here will have a decisive influence on employment levels in the years immediately ahead.

As part of the current trade push, the Department of Trade and Commerce has flown in some 800 foreign buyers, representing between them a total of 60 countries. They have been assessing our manufactured goods and production facilities, and many orders are already in prospect.

Canada's trade commissioners have also been brought home from their posts around the world for the second time in three years and, with the co-operation of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, are now interviewing hundreds of export-minded businessmen.

Our chances of selling Canadian-made finished goods in world markets on a really big scale are much brighter than many people think. In the past two years alone there has been an impressive better-than-50-percent jump in such exports. This shows what can be done and indicates that we are getting away from our traditional image as an exporter of natural resources and nothing else.

Exporting, of course, in the first instance, is both expensive and risky. There are no easy profits to be had—the competition in both price and quality is too tough for that—and, initially, such profits as may be earned are likely to be slim. That companies with no export experience and only limited means should move warily in such circumstances is understandable.

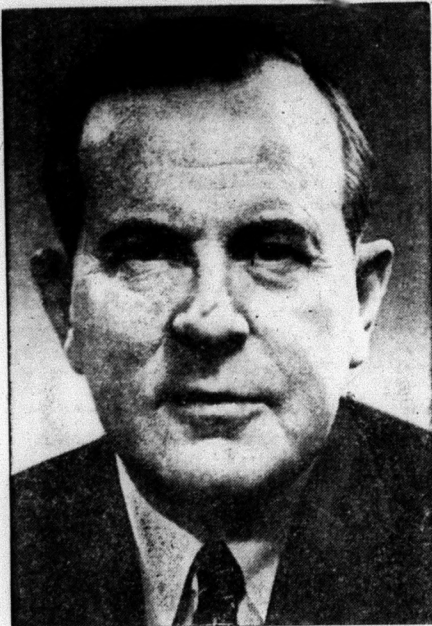

But manufacturers—small no less than large—will need to show the boldness and take risks if they are to win the foreign sales which are as necessary to the future growth and prosperity of many of them as to that of the national economy itself.

A man came out to install the hillbilly's new TV set. "Now this," he said, pointing to the antenna, "will have to go on the roof."

"It's like I always said, Zeb," said the lady of the house to her husband. "One thing leads to another. Now we have to put a roof on the house."

Population experts say there are between 30 and 60 million refugees in the world.

PRIME MINISTER PEARSON is to become a member of the Privy Council in the United Kingdom, it was announced. George Drew, Canadian high commissioner in London, broke into a Pearson press conference to read a statement saying the Queen has approved the prime minister entering the Privy Council. "Don't you forget I am a right honorable from now on," Pearson said with a smile as the roomful of reporters applauded. Pearson is already a member of the Canadian Privy Council. The date for his swearing into the British Privy Council has not yet been set.

President hitches boat ride

A barefoot President Kennedy succumbed on Easter Sunday to the lure of an unusual sailboat. He hitched a boat ride and soon was at the tiller for a 15-minute sail, taking a soaking from salt spray.

The crew rated the wartime PT boat skipper a good sailor and one chuckled over having "ordered the president of the United States around."

The president took his little daughter for an Atlantic swim off their yacht, the Honey Fitz.

Then, as the yacht was ending a two-hour cruise, a speedy twin-hulled, sloop-rigged catamaran swept in and caught the president's eye.

He stood up to watch it whip past on "close runs and finally shouted: "Any chance of getting a ride?"

The three men and three girls aboard the Paticat said later they had run their boat up close to the Honey Fitz joking about giving Kennedy a ride.

Mainly, though, the girls just wanted a closer look at the president. And, they got it. "I was just flabbergasted," said 24-year-old Toni Briant, who realized Kennedy wanted to come aboard.

A ladder was put over the side of the Honey Fitz. Kennedy donned a tan windbreaker, took off his shoes and promptly boarded the sailboat with his friend and wartime PT boat buddy, Navy Undersecretary Paul Fay.

There wasn't enough room on the sailboat, so the three girls temporarily were transferred to the Honey Fitz.

The 27-foot Paticat was skippered by Paul Lindenberg, 28, a West Palm Beach boat designer and boat builder. Graves and the other crew member, Dr. Ivan Schmidt, a West Palm Beach surgeon, joined in rating Kennedy a real good sailor. They said he seemed "absolutely fascinated."

He took orders just like anyone else aboard a boat, said Schmidt.

DR. A. E. HANNAH, 42, of Ottawa, has been appointed director of the CDA Research Station at Winnipeg. He left the associate directorship of the cereal crops research program to take up his new duties in Winnipeg early in April. After working on oil seeds at the Winnipeg laboratory Dr. Hannah moved to the cereal crops division in 1955 and directed a country-wide barley research program. Some of his work in this connection has been used in similar programs in other countries. Dr. Hannah was born at Rouleau, Sask.

Gift from PARIS

A short, short story in which a soldier's mother, abetted by a lend-lease surprise from France, triumphs over her catty friend

BY CAROL BIRD

Better see the ornate brooch, studded with chunks of green that were not jade.

"Uh, huh," said Mrs. Hinkle. "It's got class, all right. Monty sure can pick the kind of things that look like you."

What she did not add was "cheap," "brassy," and "a bit on the common side." She had been friends with Min Lerch for over thirty years, but had never quite reconciled herself to the fact that Min used henna rinses on her hair, and lied about her age.

"Well," commented Min, as she eyed the grey foot-warmer disdainfully, "you can't exactly blame the boy. He's a bachelor. Now my lads, Monty and Raymond, both have wives. Keeps them up-to-date about women's doings, what they like, what they wear, what's suitable for 'em. Not that the things Oscar sends you, Ollie, aren't your 'type.' Only, you've got to admit they're a little dull."

Ollie Hinkle seethed inwardly. Min Lerch thought she had it all over her friend in numerous ways. She had daughters-in-law, while she, Ollie, had none. Min thought she looked younger, gayer, more modern than her friend. Min boasted that her sons always treated her "as a sister." Ollie's spirits drooped.

Just at this point in her ruminations, the doorbell rang. As she opened the door, Min leaned forward to see who could be calling at this hour. Both women gasped. On the doorstep stood a dazzling creature. She was dressed in the height of fashion, her heels were stills, her black curls fell over her head in a marvelous cascade.

"Je suis Fifi, Mama," twittered this vision who looked, to the two elderly women like a 1945 version of the Flordonora Girl. "And is this shire Grandmama?" The vision turned to ward Min. And then she danced her way, as it were, into the living-room, planted a moist kiss on the cheeks of Min and Ollie, leaving curvaceous lipstick prints, and held out a note to Mrs. Hinkle. Hands and voice trembling, Ollie Hinkle read it aloud:

"Dear Mom: This is a gift from Paris. Take good care of my beloved wife, Fifi, until I get home. We were married in France eight months ago. I hope you'll like her better than the shawl from Russia."

Putting down the letter, Ollie held out her arms to her new, exotic-looking daughter-in-law, and over her shoulder addressed Min: "Well, Grandmama, does this look as though my Oscar lacks imagination?"

always felt that Minnie Lerch gloated over her disappointments. Her son, Oscar, Jr., was a fine boy, but he did lack imagination, she reflected, and he did have a genius for sending her homely, utilitarian objects as gifts, ever since he had been in the service.

Why couldn't he have sent her something glamorous from Rome—a jeweled ring, say, or a silver necklace? A lovely, dressy handbag from Australia, a stunning, satin housecoat from the Philippines? How overjoyed she would have been to display such presents to her friends, to Min Lerch in particular. Such gifts would have given her cronies the impression that Mrs. Oscar Hinkle's son thought of her as someone rather elegant, pampered, luxury-loving, exotic.

But, no, alas! the lad continued to send her the sort of things obviously destined for the old-fashioned, elderly, middle-class type of "homebody," which she definitely was, but did not like to be so classified, particularly by Min.

Now, as she tossed aside the last wrapping from Oscar's latest gift, her heart sank. It was a pair of grey foot-warmer! As a matter of fact, she could make good use of them; her circulation was poor, and her supply of oil for the oil-burner was low at this time of year; her room was cold at night. But, oh, if she could but once have triumphed over Minnie, and snatched out a satin bedjacket, or a filmy pair of lace gloves, or a frothy, chiffon "nightie" from the package, as a magician pulls out a rabbit from a hat!

"You see," observed Min, "the boy knows his mother all right. He's got you 'typed,' as my boy Monty would say. By the way, Monty sent me this pin from Java. It came yesterday."

She leaned forward so her friend could

MRS. OSCAR HINKLE wore a faint look of discomfort as the postman handed her a parcel from overseas. She carried it into the living-room, where her friend, Minnie Lerch, sat sipping a cup of tea into which she occasionally dunked a cruller.

"Betcha it's another pair of woolen mittens from Norway," said Mrs. Hinkle's guest, and Mrs. Hinkle thought she detected a faint sneer on the face of her best friend.

"Now Min, what makes you say that?" she asked as she slowly unwrapped the package.

"Because," replied Min, who could always be depended upon to say the wrong thing at the right time, "Oscar, Jr., always sends you useful, practical things. When he was stationed in the Philippines, you got drawnwork dresser-scarves. He sent bedroom slippers from Australia, and pillow-tops from Italy. Ain't I right?"

Mrs. Hinkle nodded, albeit reluctantly. She

SPRY SETTLEMENT SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNUAL RALLY

The Spry Settlement Sunday School held their annual rally on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Bronson, on June 30th. Mr. Albert Smith, of Belleville, opened the service with a hymn sing and this was followed with prayer by Mr. Walter Smith of the Wesleyan Church. Gail Smith and Mr. Keith Lohnes favoured with a couple of duets. Miss Maureen Armstrong, Mrs. Earl Armstrong, Miss Esther Hicks and Joanna Hicks also favoured with a couple of trio numbers. Esther Hicks gave a solo number. These specialties were much enjoyed and appreciated as was a number by the Sunday School pupils with Sandra Bronson and Charles Bronson singing the chorus alone.

Rev. Keith Bauder of Marmora Free Methodist Church was guest speaker. His message was inspiring and filled with many beneficial pointers for all Sunday School workers. It provided much food for thought.

After the offering was received, the closing hymn was sung by all. Rev. Hicks pronounced the benediction.

SPRY SETTLEMENT SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

SPORTSMEN'S DAY SUCCESSFUL EVENT

The second annual Sportsmen's Field Day, sponsored by the Madoc District Hunters and Anglers was held at the club property on Monday (Civic Holiday). The event was a decided success both financially and from the program offered.

As usual the trap shooting was the busiest place on the grounds with the range in use throughout the morning and afternoon. There was also considerably activity both at the rifle range and at the stationary shot gun range.

Mr. R. L. Blythe, of Colborne, was again present and put on another fine demonstration with his trained retrievers. There were also demonstrations of fly casting and archery.

For the children there were merry-go-rounds and pony rides with all being well patronized.

During the day food and soft drink stands operated by the club, looked after the hungry and thirsty.

The holder of the winning ticket on the Walkie-Talkie set was Mrs. Francis Barry, of Queensboro.

Trophies for the various events were donated by local business houses and were won as follows:

Madoc Dairy, for the best animated target shot — Maurice Courneyes, of Tweed.

Bristol Builders' Supplies, best 100-yard target, boy under 16 — Terry Pigden.

Wilson Refrigeration, for the best lady shot — Mrs. Ed Hyde.

Derry Auto Sales, for the best target of the day — Ed Hyde.

RECEIVED DIPLOMA

Miss Elaine Wickens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wickens, of Ivanhoe, recently received her nursing diploma and pin along with 51 other successful graduates of the Nightingale School of Nursing, Toronto. The second annual graduation exercises of the school were held Tuesday evening, August 6th at Convocation Hall, University of Toronto.

The address to the graduates was given by Miss Alma E. Reid, B.A., director of nursing, McMaster University, and the pins and diplomas were presented by Miss Ella M. Howard, B.Sc.N., member of the school's Advisory Committee. This marked the end of two years of intensive study and clinical experience which prepared the 52 graduates to apply for registration as professional nurses.

P.S.I. HEALTH PLAN CLOSES THIS SATURDAY

Permanent residents of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties have until August 10th, that's this coming Saturday at noon to enrol in the P.S.I. sponsored Community Health Plan.

Douglas Brown, spokesman for the Plan, advised this newspaper that the enrolment of Hastings and Prince Edward has been one of the more successful campaigns and he attributed a great deal of the success to the support of not only the elected officials and the service clubs, but also to the tremendous support given the plan by the residents. Mr. Brown stated that he wished to thank Mayor D. J. MacDonald, Mayor of Trenton; Mayor A. Haig, Mayor of Belleville; Mayor J. H. MacFarland, Mayor of Picton, and Mr. J. L. Vanover, Chairman of the Board, Belleville General Hospital, for their individual support.

Mr. Brown further stated that the deadline of noon on Saturday, August 10th cannot be extended, and it is hoped that any resident who has not completed an application and who wishes to do so, should contact one of the information centres in Belleville, Trenton or Picton before the official closing.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

What a difference a generation or so has wrought in the once-jovious art of summer cottaging. About 30 years ago, it was a gypsy sort of existence, based on the idea that people should enjoy life. Today it is a combination of status seeking, nerve wrecking and organized horror, like most of the other facets of society in the Sixties.

In those days, the cottage was a cottage, not a palatial "summer home." Today, the same structure would be called a shack, and they'd run you right out of the sub-division (which could be the best thing that ever happened to you).

Can you imagine one of these young married couples, the kind who grin and wink feverishly on the beer commercials, going, with their children, to a place away off no-two-holer out back and no supermarket within 50 miles.

Can you imagine Mummy going all summer without even one single car? Can you imagine Dad with just one lousy little rowboat? Can you imagine children who could possibly exist without water skis and transistor radios? It's pretty appalling, isn't it?

And yet, summer cottaging was, within memory, a simple almost pioneer existence, with its own very special pleasures, its deep delights, its subtle joys. It was a wonderful, golden two months each year in the lives of many youngsters, a time they still remember with savage regret for what they have become.

For one thing, Father did not have to thunder up a highway with thousands of other zaniacs, each and every one intent on getting there in the shortest possible time and taking nothin' off a nobody in the process. Father was a summer bachelor, and he loved every minute of it.

When school ended, he loaded down the old car to the groaning point, pile the kids in the back, took the whole family to the cottage, dumped them, and went sensibly back to town, where all the other sensible fathers spent the summer.

He got a rest from his wife and children, and spent the evenings quietly and happily at the bowling green, or pottering among the raspberry bushes, or running around with the local grass widow.

And what was Mother doing? Don't worry. She was kept busy, and therefore happy, taking slivers out of feet, keeping bowels open, taking the kids swimming twice a day, and filling their greedy little guts with unpasteurized milk, ungraded eggs, and uninspected meat.

Nowadays my heart aches for cottage parents. They day they arrive, Dad charges around like a bull moose, hooking up the pressure system, blowing fuses in the hydro system, trying to get his dirty great boat in the water, and running in all directions lugging vast cans of gas, brutally heavy outboards, and back-breaking cases of beer.

When everything is operating, he has to dash off to the village to get some indispensables, such as a box of tissues, a bottle of olives and some mixer for the gin. When he gets back, he learns that he is to take the kids for a swim, set up the barbecue for the party they're giving that night, and go back to the village for some cigarettes for Mum.

What are the kids doing, on that glorious first day at the cottage? They're sitting around whining because there's no TV and "Nothing to do." And what is Mummy doing? She has switched on her electric stove, flopped some frozen dinners in the oven, and is sitting with a drink, looking at the lake with bored disdain. No silvers to take out, no vegetables to prepare, no drinking water to fetch. She's unhappy.

Sunday night, or Monday morning if he's a real nut, Dad hits the highway again and arrives back on the job creased, cross and sorry for himself. But the horrible part of it is that he has to be at the cottage every week end, plus his three-weeks-with-pay in August.

At least twice a week, back in town, he gets a phone call from Mum, and he'd better be home to take it, not out "roaring around and having yourself a big time." Her call reveals that she is bored, that the kids are giving her a bad time, that the septic tank isn't working, and that some people are going to "drop over" on Saturday night and be sure to bring lotsa likker.

Sure, they have many things the old-time cottagers didn't have—lights, water, indoor plumbing. But today's cottager, in his frantic search for ease and convenience, has created a Frankenstein monster. He's a slave to all that machinery, and a captive of all that social life, and he hates his wife, who'd be much happier taking out slivers with a needle than wondering if it is too early to have her first gin and tonic.

4-H COACHING NIGHT AT DETLOR'S FARM

Some sixty 4-H members gathered at the Dettlor Farm, Stirling, on Wednesday, July 31st to get practice in judging livestock and field crops in preparation for judging competitions this fall. The Livestock and Crops Judging Day this year at Belleville Fair will be held on Tuesday, August 13th. For the first time it is compulsory for 4-H members in Hastings County who have a calf or swine project to participate in the competition as 75% of their year's mark in judging will be based on the score they receive that day.

On Wednesday evening members were coached and then judged classes of hay, gilts, mature Holstein cows and three year old Holstein heifers. Club Leader, Douglas Dettlor, coached and gave official placing on classes of gilts and mature cows while Lyall MacLachlan, Assistant Agricultural Representative for Hastings was in charge of the classes of hay and Holstein heifers. Members, also, received instruction on things to look for in some of the other classes, such as beef, hog carcasses, apples and potatoes, which members will be required to judge at Belleville Fair.

Before leaving, members and parents enjoyed chocolate milk and cookies.

CONSERVATION AUTHORITY LOOKING FOR PROPERTIES

The Moira River Conservation Authority is asking the co-operation of its municipal members to line up possible properties which might be purchased for its reforestation project.

Normally up to 2,000 acres of marginal and sub-marginal land are purchased each year for reforestation purposes, but this year by making use of additional grants through the Federal Government Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development, it is hoped that double the number of options secured last year might be obtained.

Each municipal member of the Authority is being asked by Forestry Advisory Board chairman T. Clarence Graham to line up at least two or three possible vendors of property.

The aim of the Authority is to eventually have over 100,000 acres of well managed Moira forest.

This, it is felt, would be of great value in the future of the Moira River Valley through gradually improving water conditions by slowing the snow melt in the spring, reducing surface run-off during heavy rains.

This forest would mean lower flood levels and a better flow of cleaner, cooler water and a slowdown in the recession of water tables.

Mr. Graham says the clock will not be turned back overnight as the Moira Valley contains thousands of acres that have lost their original organic matter and top soil due to cutting, followed by fires, and in many cases, exhaustive agricultural practices.

MADOC AND ELDORADO MISSIONARY SOCIETY

The Eldorado and Madoc Missionary Society held the July meeting on Thursday evening in the Standard Church, Madoc. Mr. Jas. Bronson opened the meeting by singing Hymns 269 and 111. Prayer was offered by Mr. Post.

Mrs. Bronson read the Scripture from Romans, chapter 12, verses 1-21.

A report was given by Mrs. Woods. Offering amounted to $18.00.

The Woods family rendered a lovely song. Promise cards were given to each one. These had been given to Mrs. Hinds by Miss Danford, a returned missionary. Each one read their promise aloud.

Mr. Wood then introduced the speaker, Mr. Jack Rose, who read Romans 8 - Verses 24-48. Mr. Rose spoke briefly on "What a Christian should be." Prayer was offered by Mr. McGarvey. Hymn 439 was sung. The meeting was closed by Mr. Bronson.

While the average weekly wage in Canadian manufacturing has increased since 1949 by 88 per cent, because of inflation the increase in terms of purchasing power has been only 42 per cent.

WEDDING

PACK — FOX

Miss Mary Ann Fox became the bride of Gerald Wesley Pack as the Rev. Maurice McLeod officiated at their marriage in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, on Saturday, July 6th, 1963.

They left later on a trip through the Northern United States and on return will make their home at R.R. 2, Marmora.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fox, of Marmora, and was given in marriage by her father. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pack, of Eldorado.

Wedding attendants were the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Gerald Fox, as matron of honour, the groom's sister, Miss Jean Pack, of Eldorado, and Miss Dorothy Phillips, of Marmora, as bridesmaids.

Miss Kathy McGarvey was flower girl and the ring bearer was Eric Chambers.

Douglas Pack was his brother's groomsman and the ushers were Gerald Pack and Garry Kelly, brother and cousin of the bride.

Soloist, Mrs. Donald Heath, of Stirling, sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "Be Present Holy Father." The wedding music was played by Mrs. Maurice McLeod.

The bride's gown of organza over taffeta was floor-length with fully bouffant skirt set off with large lace appliques on each side giving a pocket-like effect. Hand-clipped lace appliques on the sabrina neckline were flattered with sequins and seed pearls and the bodice was finished with long pointed sleeves. Her headpiece was a crown of pearls with Bavarian drop crystals caught to each point and was sewn to a silk illusion veil. Her cascade bouquet was of red roses and stephanotis.

Senior attendants were in fully bouffant dresses of turquoise gem organza with white lace over taffeta on the bodice and tiny shoestring straps. Matching lace boleros had bands of turquoise ribbon woven under the bustline and falling to streamers in the back. Headpieces of matching organza petals adorned with pearlized stamens were caught to over-the-face veils. Wearing short white gloves each carried a nosegay of white carnations with blue tinted pom pom 'mums with white streamers.

The flower girl was in white trimmed with turquoise gem, the dress made in the same style as the seniors. Her headpiece was in turquoise and she wore white shoes and gloves and carried a miniature nosegay of white carnations and tinted 'mums.

Mrs. Fox was wearing a sheath in champagne, the top of Chantilly lace with scalloped neckline and tiny sleeves and the skirt of chiffon with side drape. She chose beige accessories and her corsage was yellow pom 'mums.

The groom's mother wore aqua organza over matching flowered taffeta made in a princess sheath style and a fitted jacket of organza. Her accessories were white and her corsage of white 'mums.

Guests were received by the mothers and the bridal party in the church hall.

When going away the bride wore a dress of light blue organza over flowered taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Diary of a Vagabond

Missing Luggage

Let me tell you about the time I flitted off to Buffalo, N.Y. by air. The trip across Lake Ontario and over the mushrooming suburbs that, on both sides of the international border, looked like posies with their coloured roofs set among angle worm roads and green feather duster trees, left nothing to be desired. The patterns of roadways twisted and turned into crescents and courts and Niagara Falls from the air was close to a bird's paradise. The ten days spent at my destination were delightful and then came the return trip.

In the meantime, the soft early summer air changed to something resembling Hades. If the Airport, aside from the dining lounge, was air-conditioned the coolness had been dissipated into thin air. My plane, I was informed, would take off an hour late. My hosts and I, giving ourselves and edge over traffic had arrived at the terminal an hour early... actually the two hours on my hands passed quite delightfully in the dining lounge. But from there on I could almost have walked home before a sequence of events ran their course and I laid my weary head on my own pillow.

Apparently three planes had all landed within minutes of one another at Toronto's Malton Airport and the customs room was crowded with mobs of sweating, tired people all hovering over a steel counter not more than 25 feet long. An automatic device was feeding every description of luggage onto this counter and a man was shouting "Claim your own baggage." New at this mode of travel, I calmly took out my baggage checks and waited in line like a lady.

Soon I realized something was wrong. None of the passengers I had travelled with were in sight. After searching in the crowd I found a porter and asked him if the luggage from my flight had come down yet. "Sure m'am, it's over on the other side of the room." There were no signs to direct a passenger, no personnel to help and when I wormed my way back out of the line-up and over to the other side of the customs area there was one shabby little bag left. Mine was nowhere in sight.

By the time I found an official, related my loss, filled out a claim sheet, turned my baggage key over to the customs officer and swore I hadn't purchased anything of any value while in the United States, the bus scheduled to take our flight into the city had left. I climbed aboard the next one in line and for 15 minutes melted almost to a grease spot waiting for a load of passengers.

Home by Taxi

It ended by my taking a taxi 15 miles, tearing along the Trans-Canada Highway, with a madman driver gobbling up mileage at 80 MPH and my last dollars ditto. From there I had to pick up my own car and drive another 25 miles in holiday traffic. It was five hours from the time I arrived at the Buffalo Airport until I opened my front door. It had cost me the price of my plane fare, my dinner ante, cab fare, car park, one suitcase worth nearly $600 complete with contents, and my sweet disposition.

Oh sure, the bag turned up 48 hours later at the bus station in my home town looking a little the worse for wear. Next time I'll take a gunny sack along for luggage.

Magical STRINGS

THERE'S a riddle that asks: "What is the most puzzling thing an author can write about?" And the answer is a piece of string, because it has two different ends. Piece of string puzzling? You can become a magician with just this prop as the following stunts demonstrate:

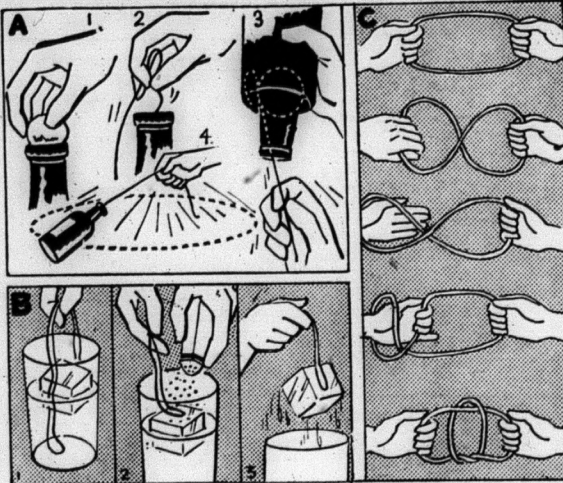

1. You've heard of the mystic powers Indian fakirs display with rope. You can exhibit similar prowess with twine. (See Illustration A, at right.) Drop a small rubber ball into a dark-colored bottle (step 1); insert a piece of cord (2); turn bottle upside down and exert slight pressure on cord; bottle will remain fixed to cord—can be swung, turned upside down, etc.

2. Place an ice cube in a glass of water. Challenge anyone present to lassoo ice cube with a piece of string. When everyone has failed, you do your stuff (see illus. B, figs. 1 and 2). Lay string atop ice cube; shake salt over both string and ice. The salt freezes string to ice and the magician lifts cube from water.

3. Anyone can tie a knot in a piece of string, of course, but here's how to tie one instantly—"Quicker than the eye." Illustrations (C, at far right) show steps. String is first held as at top.

First move is to twist left hand, forming a loop. Quickly twisting hand upward again, reach through loop and grasp center portion of string indicated. Draw this part of string through loop and knot will be formed as shown.

Batter Up in Bake-Off

IN A reckless mood, George Starch wants to bake a cake for his wife's birthday. No ready-mixes for him, says George, this is going to be a cake just like Mother used to make. Suddenly, George finds himself with eight pounds of batter. Now, George has to decide whether to bake one large cake and six dozen cupcakes, or four large cakes (of the same size) and 32 cupcakes.

No one knows how George's baking adventure will turn out, but it is possible to tell (by weight) how much batter should go into each large cake and cupcake. How much?

Remember, George has whipped up eight pounds of batter in all. No fair peeking at answer below, unless you are stumped.

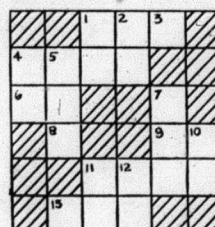

Answers: One and one-fourth pounds in the large cake; one and one-half ounces in the cupcake.

Observe a House of Another Color

DRAW the outline of a house, flower, or other object on a sheet of bright red paper. Cut out your creation and mount it on a piece of plain white paper. Hold this sheet in one hand and in the other hand hold another sheet of white paper. Gaze steadily at the red design for about 20 seconds and then immediately transfer your eye to the blank sheet. You will see the house or design in another color.

TO SOLVE this witty tester, proceed as in a crossword puzzle, using numbers instead of letters for the answers. Insert a single digit in each square. The trick is to get answers that will function across and down.

ACROSS
1. One of each of these: U. S. coins.
4. Titles on theater marquees: My — Loves: — in Texas; — Day Lover.
6. Apples in the Garden of Eden: Eve ate and Adam too and the devil won. That makes how many apples?
7. Add "th" to a cereal and get a word meaning —.
8. A half of 8 that is less than four.

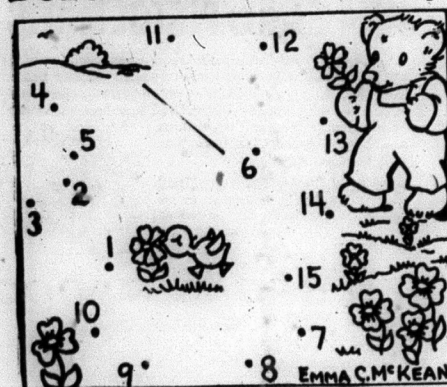

3. You can always buy a steel engraved picture of George Washington for — dollar.
4. Six sawbucks plus a buck.
5. Search this: A teacher is one who gets paid very little attention and even less salary.
7. Numbers suggested by single, trident, week, but not necessarily in this order.

9. Age of Sophie Tucker, the red-hot mama.
11. Committees of — deliberate plenty
But most jobs are done by committees of —.
13. Overrun 14 feet in the 300-yard dash.

DOWN
1. A dirty Roman trick: Nine minus one.
2. Sum of nine Hamiltons and one Lincoln (U. S. bills).

10. One mile more than half a hundred.
11. Consonants in the alphabet.
12. Pockets in a shroud; in a pair of two-pocket sweaters.
13. How many letters in the name of the state once known as Franklin?

DOTOGRAPH TEST FOR JUNIORS

"JUST what I need for my garden," says Beanie Bear, upon discovering something in his yard. What can it be? To find out, simply draw a line from dot 1 to dot 2 to dot 3, and so on, until you have touched all 15 dots. Afterwards, add colors.

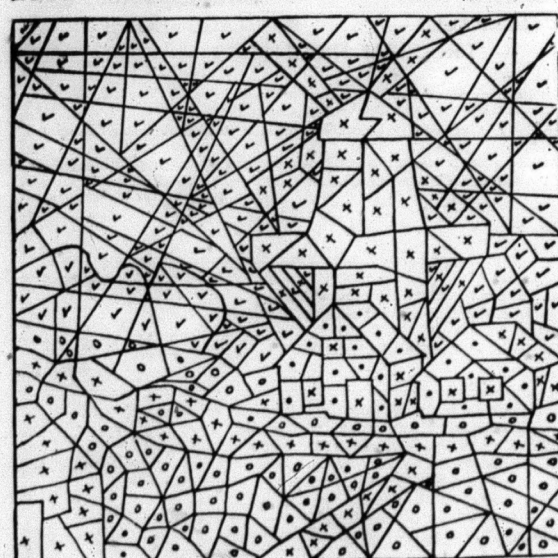

Speaking of gardens, see if you can answer these riddles:
1. In what way are the posts of a gate and seeds alike?
2. What vine produces milk?
3. What kind of a vegetable always makes a pot useless?
4. What time is it when a hose has a hole in it?
5. Where can one always find daffodils in the wintertime?

Four-Way Anagram

EACH of the missing words below is spelled with the same six letters arranged differently:
By ——— or accident yesterday my barber went
And ——— all my hair, much to my great horror.
To compensate me for his whim,
I received a letter ——— by him.
He ——— to give me a bottle of hair restorer.

Answers: Missing object is a scissor. The four missing words in the order of their use are: Scissors, accident, haircut, hair restorer.
Answers: 1. In what way are the posts of a gate and seeds alike? ———. 2. What vine produces milk? ———. 3. What kind of a vegetable always makes a pot useless? ———. 4. What time is it when a hose has a hole in it? ———. 5. Where can one always find daffodils in the wintertime? ———.

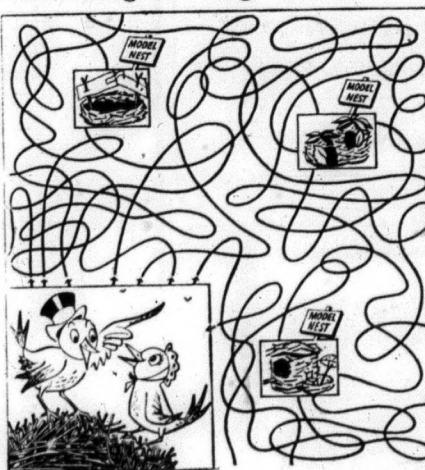

TRY "PAINTING" A LANDSCAPE

OBSCURED by seemingly meaningless lines in the diagram above is a landscape typical of a certain European country. Which country? That's for you to decide. Add a touch of color here and there and the picturesque scene will be revealed. Use red in all segments marked with an X; add green to areas designated by O; yellow in areas containing dots; blue in areas marked with a check. How quickly and neatly can you bring the hidden landscape to the fore?

Just for fun, see if by using your powers of observation and concentration you can guess what the scene's all about. If someone else wants to try, cover diagram with tracing or tissue paper, and add colors to that.

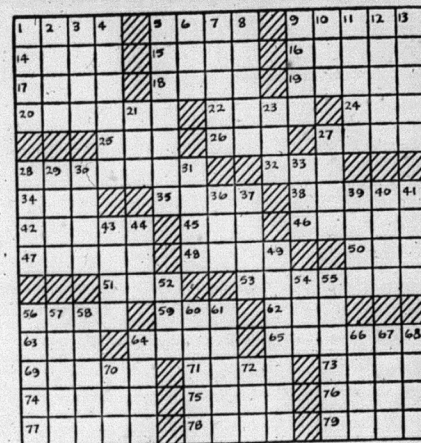

Frolicking Among the Wrens

OUTRIFUL chap that he is, the male wren builds several nests and lets his mate select the one she likes best. A certain wren we know, however, saw a chance to save a lot of work by getting together with a bunch of the boys and building several model nests from which all their respective spouses could choose. This left a lot of time for the male wrens to cavort with the sparrows, pick berries and so forth. Just how it will all work out, we do not know, for the lady wrens haven't as yet inspected the models. In fact, the first inspection trip is about to get under way in the diagram above. In the interests of this unique experiment, see if you can guide the female wren shown to the three model homes and back to the starting point. Oh, yes, to jolly things up for the girls, the male wrens marked seven paths with arrows, but only one route leads to the several nests. Ha!

11 BARLEY CROSSES IN CO-OP TEST

At western universities and Dominion Experimental Stations several plant crosses are being tested in 1963 on the chance at least one may qualify as a new high standard variety of malting barley.

Their respective performances are being assessed by the Brewing and Malting Barley Research Institute at Winnipeg. Seven are at advanced stages of trial in the Western Co-operative Test. The other four are new introductions to it.

Five are being tried at Brandon Experimental Farm, two new introductions to the Western Cooperative Test. The other three, all from a complex cross, at the moment appear to have best prospects, but before acceptance have still to undergo rigid assessment.
They have good disease resistance and indications of excellent quality. Under test at pilot plants this year additional trials are planned for 1963-64.

Two others are under test at the University of Manitoba, one for the third year, with some promise of malting quality. The other, a new introduction to the Co-operative Test is resistant to stem rust, has very high yield.
Preliminary tests have indicated a malting quality similar to the at Edmonton, one at the Experimental Farm at Lacombe, and two at the Research Station at Lethbridge. The last two gave promising malting test results in 1962, and are being tested again in 1963.

TAX TIPS PAID WITH BEER

Bartender Albert Thewliss, of Shipley, England, informed that he owed $58.80 tax on tips from customers, paid up yesterday with a crate of beer. "I don't get cash tips — just an occasional free drink," he told the astonished tax man. "That's how I earned it; that's how I pay it."

POPULAR PHRASE

The popular phrase applied to the RCMP, "They always get their man," was apparently coined by a visiting American newspaperman shortly after the Mounted Police force came in existence.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH CANADA

The Gallup poll recently discovered that 42 percent of Canadians think their country is all right. Personally, I am relieved.
I was beginning to think I belonged to a lonely little group because I refused to believe all the fashionable gloom and doom talk in Canada.

Of course, 39 percent polled did think Canada's development was unsound and the remainder had no opinion, but the survey at least stimulated some good rebutts. For instance:

One distinguished editorial writer tackled the Gallup poll answers given by the dissatisfied Canadians. "Too much unemployment" and "political instability and confusion".

"There is no way of saying how much unemployment is too much," he wrote, "but unemployment is not peculiar to Canada among the industrialized nations." He pointed out it was a major problem in the U.S. and in Britain.

As to the political instability and confusion, he asked: "What country is from either? The Russian and the Chinese dictatorships perhaps have stability enforced by police and army."

Another writer recently lambasted Bruce Hutchinson for a magazine article in which he said
"Fifteen years of boom and excessive expectation were probably the worst thing that ever happened to us."

"Would Mr. Hutchinson deny progress and prevent prosperity just because there could be an unpleasant aftermath?" he asked.
"Would Canadians eschew all joyful celebrations because of the possibility of hangovers? Should a man and wife avoid having children because they are a worry?
Should development and investment stop because Mr. Hutchinson thinks the future is dark?"

A western columnist took up the cudgels recently on behalf of the RCMP calling Maclean's Magazine article attacking the work of the police security division "a boo-boo of serious magnitude."

The RCMP makes good copy, he said. "It is a colorful force with a wonderful reputation. A sensational attack on it is certain to create excitement and boost magazine circulation. Did Maclean's need circulation that badly?"

Perhaps such rebuttals will become fashionable. Canada and her institutions deserve our serious attention but we can never hope to improve on them by constantly tearing them down. As a distinguished Canadian businessman said recently: "The steady drip, drip of socialist criticism has had a negative effect and has blocked or inhibited the opportunity for Canadians to adopt and develop a strong and positive economic at-

CARS LAUNDERED

Tennesseans no longer have their cars washed. They have them "laundered". And the difference between the two adds a three percent sales tax to the job.

Taxpayers were given the word at a news conference designed to explain a new law extending the sales tax to utilities laundering and personal property repairs.
Preventive maintenance, officials explained, will also come under the tax.

"In other words," commented a newsman, "everything you have done at a service station except a car wash will be subject to this tax."

"Oh no," said one state official,
"that comes under the laundering provisions and it is taxable too."

SUPPLEMENTARY LABOR INCOME

In Canada in the period 1945-
1962 supplementary labor income — which consists of employers' contributions to pension and welfare plans, unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation — increased from $156 million to $876 million.

IOWA GHOSTS!
LAUGH AND FUN!
ANTICS GALORE

The touring Negro laughmakers are traveling again this season, to entertain the fans with their skill in softball.

The Ghosts, while not as famous as their counterparts, the Harlem Globe Trotters, are a talented band of fun-makers who can turn on the steam or tickle the fancy of the most staid fan, all within minutes.

They have two distinguished gentlemen, who are the leading trouble makers for the Ghosts, "Shorty" Hunter and "Showboat" Lewis.

FOR SALE—White Enamel Beach Range, almost new. Phone 473-4054, Madoc. 30-3

The Ghosts are billed as a Circus, America's greatest summer sports show. The Ghosts are a touring ball team with a carload of tricks.

A talent-plus comedy routine equivalent to that of the famed Harlem Globe Trotters in basketball. The Ghosts, a barnstorming outfit which puts a few fancy, added wrinkles into ball play. The Ghosts are capable of beating most opposition with straight ball. They add unorthodox ball handling, contortion and wisecracks to entertain the fans.

In the most hilarious thing since Abbott and Costello, the Iowa Ghosts will keep the crowd in an uproar throughout the game with their remarks and comical but professional-like plays.

During the game the Ghosts will give an exhibition of pepperball and rowboat acts.

After the game the Ghosts will give an exhibition of shadow-ball which takes place without a ball, but with all the motions of a real game.

The Ghosts split into two different sides and play one inning, and at the end of the game they go into their slow-motion act, which will give the crowd a thrill.

The Famous Fabulous Iowa Ghosts formed a nucleus out of Sioux City, Iowa, back in the early 30's. You can be sure of this: they will put on a good exhibition that you will always remember. In victory or defeat they always achieve a degree of greatness that lives forever in your memory.

The Ghosts have defeated some of the greatest teams in softball throughout Canada, Mexico and the United States.

CELEBRATED 50th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Ves Embury wish to thank their many friends and neighbors for the lovely gifts and cards received on the occasion of their golden wedding celebrated at their home here on Sunday, August 4th.

Mr. and Mrs. Embury were married on August 4th, 1913, by Rev. Sander-son. The attendants were (Verna Embury) Mrs. Bate Tanner and the late Clarence Embury.

The couple were blessed with two children, Mrs. Sid Johnston of Madoc, and Mr. Percy Embury, of Springbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Embury are both old Madocers, born in Madoc and have lived here nearly all their lives. They have nine grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Among the gifts received was a beautiful floor lamp and matching table lamp from the family, and flowers from Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P., a card of congratulations from Lester B. Pearson, Prime Minister of Canada, a telegram from the Secretary to the Governor-General, a telegram and plaque from John Roberts, Prime Minister of Ontario and letters of congratulations from Hon. John D. Diefenbaker and from Rod Webb, M.P.

KIWANIAN'S ATTEND BARBECUE

Last Thursday members of the Madoc Kiwanis Club entertained their ladies at Moira Lake when a barbecue was held at Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roscoe's summer cottage.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Andrews wish daughter, Ida Faye, to Mr. William to announce the engagement of their John Mahoney, son of Mrs. Catherine Mahoney, of Madoc. Wedding to take place August 16, 1963, at 8:00 p.m., in Sacred Heart Rectory, Madoc.

DAVID FOLEY TOP BOY JUDGE AT BELLEVILLE FAIR

A record number of Junior Farmers and 4-H Club members from four Quinte district counties took part in the junior livestock and crops judging day, while in the evening Dairy Princesses for both Hastings and Prince Edward counties were chosen.

Approximately 230 juniors took part in the day's judging competitions which saw David Foley of Madoc township, emerge as the top boy contestant and Helen Whitehead, of Bloomfield, as the overall high girl.

The top boy and girl will receive the Northern Electric special prize.

Boyd Nelson, of Codrington, in Northumberland county, scored the highest marks for giving reasons in his judging and will receive the Bank of Montreal special prize.

Junior officials admitted Tuesday's all-day downpour presented its difficulties for the junior program.

But on the other hand the rain kept the juniors together, and all under one roof.

MICHAEL CHUBB HAS RESIGNED TO FURTHER STUDIES

After eight years as field officer with the Moira Conservation Authority, Michael Chubb will relinquish his duties later this month. He will enrol early in September at Michigan State University to study for his Master's degree in Science.

Mr. Chubb's position is being filled by Mr. Jack King, of Toronto, a graduate of the University of Toronto in Forestry last June.

Mr. King has been with the Niagara Conservation Authority since his graduation and will be reporting to the local Authority office in Cannifton next week, so that he will become acquainted with his new duties before Mr. Chubb's departure.

MRS. ISABEL SHAW HASTINGS COUNTY DAIRY PRINCESS

Tuesday was Dairy Princess Day at Belleville Fair.

Separate competitions held in the Junior Building at the Fair grounds saw three girls from Hastings county, and two girls from Prince Edward county compete for milking honours.

The new 1963 Dairy Princess for Hastings county is Mrs. Isabel Shaw, of Eldorado, while Miss Janet Parks, of R.R. 10, Picton, is Prince Edward county Dairy Princess.

The two girls will now go to the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto to compete for the all-Ontario Dairy Princess title.

The 1962 Ontario Dairy Princess, Miss Carolyn Murray, of Cornwall, and Miss Helen Morrow, 1962 Hastings Dairy Princess, attended the competition at Belleville Fair and assisted in crowning the new county princesses.

Tuesday's milking competition was scheduled as an evening feature in front of the grandstand but the all-day downpour forced a change in plans.

Instead the portable cattle stanchions were erected in the fair junior building and the girls milked their cows and washed up their milkers to the accompaniment of rain rattling on the metal roof overhead.

Competing for the Prince Edward Dairy Princess honours were Miss Parks and Helen Whitehead of Bloomfield.

Hastings contestants were the eventual winner, Mrs. Isabel Shaw, Miss Rosemary Bush, of Glen Miller, and Miss Mary Wilman, of Belleville.

Miss Whitehead was nosed out by less than one point for the Prince Edward county Princess honour, but she didn't go home empty handed.

She won second prize in the milking competition, but came first for girls in the junior judging competition held during the day.

Miss Murray, as 1962 Ontario Dairy Princess, acted as commentator during the milking competitions, explaining each step being taken by the girls as they prepared their milking machines, attached them to the cows, and the concluding "washing up" process.

She explained that speed was not the most important factor but rather the thoroughness of the job — both milking and washing up — which really counted.

Judges for the competition were: Jack M. Bain, director of milk products for Ontario, M. T. Napper, Peterborough area fieldman, and G. E. Clarke, area fieldman for Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington.

PERMITS WILL BE ISSUED FOR THREE YEARS

The licence issuing bureau of the Department of Transport has been informed of the new procedure for renewing chauffeur's and operator's licences for 1964. The new procedure is the first step toward issuing such licences for a three-year period instead of on an annual basis as has been the custom in the past.

No longer will it be possible to take your present driving licence into the local issuing office and secure your new licence simply by paying two dollars. Under the new system, every registered driver will receive through the mail, an application form for his or her 1964 permit. This form will show the permanent driving licence number allotted to the applicant, as well as other pertinent data, such as an accurate address and description of physical characteristics.

The form will also indicate the cost of the initial licence under the new system. The cost will vary, because the 1964 permits will expire on the actual birthday of the applicant, one or two years from now. Consequently, the cost of the 1964 permit will vary from $1.85 to $4.85, depending on the birthday of the driver.

After the initial licence is issued under the new system, all renewals will cost five dollars for a three-year period.

Upon receipt of the new application form from the Department of Transport, each driver must either return the form to Toronto, or take it to the local issuing office where it will be authenticated and stamped. The issuer will collect the fee shown on the face of the application and verify the particulars on the form.

MADOC PONY WINNER AT BELLEVILLE FAIR

Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Whytock's Pinto pony "Doc" won two firsts, one second and one third prize ribbons at Belleville Fair this week. The driver of the pony was their nephew, Charles Noble, of Toronto, and the rider was Roxanna Keller, of Madoc. Congratulations are extended to the two children as it was their first showing at a fair.

22½ LB. MUSKELLUNGE LEADS KIWANIS FISH CONTEST

Two more large muskellunge have been taken from the waters of Moira Lake during the past week. On Thursday night of last week Gordon Pigden landed a 19½ lb. beauty.

Over the weekend, George Fox caught one which weighed 22½ lbs. As a result, George now heads the Kiwanis Fish-Contest in the Muskie division.

CAUGHT WHITE WOODCHUCK

Mr. John Bristol, of R.R. 2, Madoc township, reported to the Review that he has alive in his possession a white woodchuck which he recently wounded and captured.

Albino woodchucks are not common, but this is the second one to be seen locally in recent years.

THOMASBURG LEADS MADOC SOFTBALLERS

In the Trent Valley Softball semi-finals Thomasburg has taken a one-game lead over Madoc and the best-of-five series now stands at two games to one.

In the other half of the semi-finals, Bloomfield leads Stirling three games to none.

On Saturday night, Madoc took a 3-1 decision over Marmora in a best of three series in the first game of the O.A.S.A. play-offs. The second game will be played in Marmora tonight.

On Wednesday night before a large crowd of spectators, Madoc defeated the travelling Iowa Ghosts at the local ball park 3-0.

LOCAL and PERSONAL

Miss Jeannie Martin is spending this week in Campbellford with her aunt, Mrs. Greer Yearwood and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Kissell and sons, Richard and David, and daughter, June, of Winnipeg, spent two weeks at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Alvey.

Misses Brenda and Ronda Lewis, of Kingston, are spending holidays with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lewis.

Miss Hughena Clarke is spending holidays at Detroit with her aunt Janet.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Ferguson, Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Wiley visited Mrs. Hugh McIntosh over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Dobson, of Toronto, who are camping at Crystal Beach, Madoc, visited Mrs. Hugh McIntosh. Mrs. Robert McCoy is visiting her son, Keith, in Belleville, for a few days.

Miss Paula Murphy, of Belleville, spent a week's holidays with Miss Beverley Fleming.

Any driver who has an incorrect or insufficient address on his or her present permit will fail to receive the 1964 application by mail, and a considerable delay and lengthy correspondence can result before the permit can be renewed.

Drivers who pass their driver examination and apply for their first licence will have to await receipt of the application form from Toronto before the permit is issued.

When in full operation, the new system will reduce the volume of work in issuing licences and will effect a small saving for the driver. However, the critical 1964 period will probably bring a rash of complaints from drivers, who have present permits which do not show accurate street addresses, or in the case of some rural drivers, accurate lot and concession numbers.

60 VOICE MALE CHOIR AT ST. GEORGE'S, KINGSTON

On Sunday, August 25th, an event of unusual interest will take place in Kingston when the sixty voice choir (30 boys, 30 men) from England of The Royal School of Church Music, London, will sing two Services and a Recital in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, at 9:00 a.m. and 11:00 a.m.

The Special Choir which is in Canada to sing daily Services in Toronto for the Anglican Congress is making a limited number of appearances in the Cathedral Cities of Hamilton, Kingston and Ottawa, apart from Toronto. The choir will be under the direction of Dr. Gerald H. Knight, F.R.C.O., Director of the R.S.C.M. with the famed organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Dr. John Dykes Bower, at the organ.

The Right Reverend E. J. K. Roberts, Bishop of Kensington, London, England, will accompany the choir as President of the Council and will officiate at both Services besides preaching at 11:00 a.m.

The City that Glows

I wish I could have stored a little of the enthusiasm of Louis Pare to draw on later when my inspiration lags. He was one of the fathers who created the annual Quebec Carnival and has the jolly bonhomie of Bonhomme himself. Bonhomme, the happy snowman, has become familiar to thousands and is the outstanding trademark of the famous Quebec City winter attraction.

I met Monsieur Pare in the charming office the Quebec Government has opened in Rockefeller Centre, where he is in charge. When he had proudly shown me the artistically functional suites planned for the promotion of his native land, I asked him what he considered was the greatest drawing board for the tourist dollar in his province. I am sure he is not prejudiced just because he played an important part in organizing the Carnival; it is simply that it has become such an outstanding event and so popular it almost surmounts in the off season, the summer appeal of this ancient Canadian city.

I was infected with his enthusiasm and I believe, as we swelter in summer heat, the story of the Quebec Carnival will prove a popular subject.

Expanded Budget
 Some idea of the growth of this undertaking can be gathered from the fact that when the Carnival was conceived the first budget was set up for $30,000. On its tenth anniversary, which is the 1964 Carnival coming up next winter, the budget approved by the Board of Directors is for $400,000.

The first year, seven groups from the seven areas called Dutchies elected a candidate for Queen of the Carnival and votes were sold at 10c each to raise funds for the project. By the third year this had expanded to 14 groups to include all classes from student to civic employee, the wealthy and the middle classes, service clubs and sportsmen.

It was at this juncture that a painless way to finance the campaign and publicize the city was conceived. A door-to-door blitz from 6 to 10 p.m. covered the entire city. Every door bell was rung and candles were offered for sale at 5c each or so many for a dollar. When they burned it was possible to become the lucky winner of a hundred dollar prize if a capsule was found with a number to call. Winners appeared on TV while the city glowed in candlelight and the whole excitement of this money earning inspiration added to the atmosphere and conviviality of the carnival.

The idea had such appeal it has become one of the most spectacular events of the winter season. There are no more financial problems, the natural instincts of natives and tourists alike to participate in the prospect of finding a capsule in their candle has insured funds and added lustre to this Canadian Carnival that has everything — ice, snow and color.

KETCHESON FAMILY HOLDS REUNION AT TWEED PARK

Threatening skies failed to daunt the courage of 125 representatives of one of Hastings County's oldest families who assembled at Tweed Memorial Park on August 3rd. It was the occasion of the 7th annual reunion of the descendants of William Ketcheson, U.E.L., who came to Canada in 1786.

Registration was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Max Ketcheson of Peterborough, assisted by Mrs. Ralph Sills, Halloway, and Mrs. Nelson Welsh, R.R. 6, Belleville. Many families not previously able to attend were represented and increased evidence of interest is apparent among the younger generation as one of the largest crowds of children on record attended.

Following a bountiful picnic dinner, the chairman, Mr. Sam Ketcheson of Toronto welcomed all and asked family members to introduce themselves and tell to which branch of the family tree they belonged.

The names of the deceased members were read by Mr. Cecil Ketcheson, Halloway, and a minute of silence observed for the following: Mrs. Lena Menzies, Alberta; Mr. Blecker Ketcheson, Wallbridge; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Foster, Tweed; Mr. Tom Beatty, Tweed; Mr. Carl Reid, Toronto; baby Noreen White (16 months twin); Roslin; Mrs. Eva Baker, Trenton; Mrs. R. L. Edwards, Cobourg; Mr. Kenneth Denyes, Halloway.

Special tribute was paid to the late Mr. Claude Young, of Wellington, who passed away in June. His interest in the Ketcheson family history prompted him to do considerable research and writing so the genealogy of the family was published in 1958. His name will be perpetuated by all those who have purchased and read the books. Mr. Taylor Franklin, historian, convenor, reported a few books yet for sale at $3.00 each.

Some discussion followed on the restoration of the tomb of one of the original Ketcheson members located on the old Ketcheson homestead in Sidney, now owned by the Brown family. A committee consisting of Mr. Gordon Ketcheson, Ottawa, and Mr. Griffin Ketcheson, Foxboro, was appointed to investigate what could be done.

Of interest to all members was the display of the original family Bible of the progenitor of the family, William Ketcheson. This recently came into the possession of Miss Ethel Ketcheson, Toronto. Although the pages are yellow and crisp with age, the handwriting was of interest, depicting the family names. Also on the cover page were clippings of the deaths of William and his wife, Mary Full Ketcheson.

She also displayed the Bible of Elias Ketcheson. The descendants are anxious that these Bibles be preserved so after some discussion it was decided to loan them to the Belleville Museum.

Also of interest to all and particularly to those connected with the Hagerman family, was a clipping from a scrap book of the late Mrs. John V. Ketcheson, Halloway, now in the possession of John K. Holman, Corbyville.

Mrs. Sheldon Homan, Corbyville, read part of the clipping which told the story of Gatre Ketcheson, seventh child of Col. William Ketcheson of the fifth concession of Sidney, who at the age of six years was lost in the woods for eight days in chill October weather. After intensive search she was found reduced to a skeleton, but still living, having survived on wintergreen berries. She grew to womanhood and twice married, first to William Hagerman and later to R. Grass of Sidney.

Many of her descendants were present at the reunion. It is planned to make mimeograph copies of the story to distribute at the reunion next year.

 Oldest person attending, Mr. Fred Ketcheson (92), Moira.

Oldest person driving to picnic, Mr. Cecil Ketcheson, Halloway.

Mother of the youngest person present, Mrs. Donald Denike, Toronto, (mother of Carol 11 mo.)

Most recent bride, Mrs. Edward Cochran (nee Barbara DeNike) Etobicoke, married June 27, 1963.

Person coming farthest, Mr. Douglas DeNike, Chicago, Illinois.

Person with most grandchildren, Mrs. George Ketcheson, Madoc (17 grandchildren).

Lucky draws were made by Miss June Robinson, Marmora, and Mr. Rex Ball, St. Catharines. Miss Mildred Ketcheson, Halloway, made the nearest guess on a jar of paper clips.

The resignation of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Franklin was accepted with regret, as they have been very hard workers on the committee. Mr. Cecil Ketcheson also withdrew his name. He has been a pioneer worker on the committee too, having been the first president also.

The following officers were elected for 1963-1964:

Chairman, Mr. Allan Ketcheson, Madoc; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. Nelson Welsh, R.R. 6, Belleville; Committee Members, Mr. Max Ketcheson, Peterborough; Mr. Murray DeNike, Toronto; Mr. Griffin Ketcheson, Foxboro; Mr. H. W. Rose, Frankford; Mrs. G. McCullough, Foxboro; Mrs. Laurison Ketcheson, Halloway; Mr. Jack Ketcheson, Geulph; Mr. Ross Ketcheson, Moira; Mr. Ralph Sills, Halloway.

Following this the crowd dispersed for an interesting program of sports conducted by Mr. Bob Franklin, Toronto, assisted by Miss Sue Kitchen, Scarborough, and Miss Carolyn Franklin, Kingston. Swimming was also enjoyed by the younger members and visiting by the older folk, bringing another successful reunion to a close.

The results of the races were as follows:

APPROVAL OF HOSPITAL PLANS EXPECTED LAST PART OF AUGUST

Ontario Hospital Services Commission approval of plans for the proposed new extension to Belleville General Hospital is hoped to be received by the last week in August, members of Belleville city council were told last week by Mayor A. M. Haig.

Mayor Haig said that the Hospital board chairman, J. N. Wainover, and J. E. Buchan, chairman of the hospital building committee, together with their architect and planning consultant, had met with the hospital services commission and that their reply was expected by August 25th or 26th.

Plans call for provisions of 325 active beds, 40 psychiatric beds and 70 beds for long term or chronic patients. Present rating of the hospital is 227 beds.

If the present plans of the hospital board are approved, cost estimates can then be prepared for consideration by the joint city-county hospital committee.

A definite proposal could then be forwarded to the Hastings county council at its meeting the first week in September.

The city of Belleville and the county of Hastings are now joint owners of the hospital on a 65-35 per cent basis.

If you hear any rude noises while you're reading this column, pay no attention. It will merely be my stomach trying to remind me that I am not the Emperor Nero.

For the past couple of weeks, I've been trying to convince the old grocery chute, through one orgy after another, that it could handle anything I chose to throw into it; half-raw steak on top of skunky beer, raspberries and ice cream on top of gin and lemon.

All I'm trying to say is that we poor people, simply because we have some summer holidays, shouldn't start acting as though life were just a gay, mad whirl, a big bowl of caviar. It's more like a blind stagger, a bowl of cornflakes.

As our most recent carload of old-friend visitors fades into the exhaust fumes, and I wave a shaky farewell, I can't help thinking nostalgically of those good old days when I was a weekly editor, and had one week's vacation a year. Everything was so simple. You went to the editions annual convention, tottered home looking and feeling like a skeleton, and went happily back to work for another fifty-one weeks.

Now that I have those longer holidays that used to look so golden, I realize that man is a creature of toil, and is happier and better when he has his nose to the old grindstone, his shoulder to the good old wheel, and his feet planted ecstatically in that good, old familiar rut.

Lengthy summer holidays, and I say it with deliberation, are a menace to health, wealth, morale and marriage.

Take health. When my holidays began, I was in good shape. Just the usual smoker's hack, crooked knee, touch of buritis in the shoulder, and aching back. But clear of mind, steady of nerve. Today, I'm a wreck. My sunburn is peeling, my stomach is snarling like a scalded cat, and every time a car stops outside our place I run and hide in the attic.

My wife is in even worse condition. When holidays began, she was pale but perky. Today, she is brown on the outside, but a whimpering shadow within. And no wonder. She was about to step from a dock onto the deck of a millionaire's cruiser. The gentleman, who can run eight companies with one hand behind him, can't run his boat. As she stepped, he put it in reverse, by accident.

And there was the Old Girl, with only ten feet of air between her and fourteen feet of water. It was like one of those cartoon comedies in which the hero runs off the edge of a cliff and keeps running in air for a second until he looks down. I might add that she didn't have her swimming attire on.

She'll never be the same girl. On the way to her watery welcome, she hit the dock a couple of good ones, losing about a foot of skin off her arm, and picking up a bruise on her nice tanned leg the size of a grapefruit, and next day, the color of a baboon's bottom. She's off millionaire boat drivers for life.

Take wealth. When we began these holidays, I had two months' salary to put me through the summer. At the end of one month, I had no month's salary and a session with the bank manager.

It seems that when you're working, you can't spend money. When you're not, you can't. Most people save up for their holidays and blow the lot on a glorious two weeks doing something or staying somewhere, they can't afford. Try doing this for two months.

Take morale. Frankly, after six weeks off the job, I have become a total sloth. It rhymes but it doesn't reason. My total accomplishment, on projects around the house, has been the erection of a twenty foot clothesline. The book I was going to write this summer has turned into a comic book. My wife laughs every time I mention it. Children imitate. When the kids see their old man lolling in a lawn chair looking at the trees, they lie down on the uncut lawn and do the same.

As for marriage, you can take it too. Lengthy holidays put more strain on a solid marriage than drink, gambling or other women. I won't go into details. But lady, how would you like to run a motel-without-rates with one hand, and try to direct a lazy, unshaven brute with the other? Dad, how would you like two months of togetherness with the old battleaxe? I leave it to your imagination.

If this is what a long holiday is like, I sure hope I die before I retire.

SCOUTS AND 4-H FORESTRY CLUBS VISIT BUSH & MILL OPERATION

Members of the 4-H Forestry Clubs from Renfrew and Cloyne recently combined with the Opeongo District Boy Scouts for a tour of Gillies Bros. & Co. Ltd. bush and mill operation.

During the course of the day the club members and Scouts had an opportunity to follow the manufacture of lumber from the tree growing in the forest until the finished product is ready to go into the construction of a house. Gillies Brothers are one of the oldest lumber manufacturing concerns in Ontario, starting in 1842 on the Clyde River near Hopetown. Today after more than one-hundred and twenty years of operations they are one of the largest producers of white pine lumber in eastern Ontario.

The morning session consisted of a tour of the bush operations conducted by the company foresters who explained the various operations. Before any cutting begins on Crown land the company must submit an acceptable operating plan to the Department of Lands and Forests. The Department personnel then mark all the pine trees which are to be cut, making sure to leave ample trees for seed and for site protection so that the productivity of the area will be maintained.

After the trees are marked, roads and landings are built to provide access to the timber. Gillies Brothers operations is highly mechanized. The trees are first felled, limbed and topped. They are then skidded tree length, to a landing by a small caterpillar tractor where they are bucked into logs. The logs are mechanically sorted, piled and after being measured are loaded on trucks for delivery to the mill.

The company mill which the group visited in the afternoon is located at Braeside. Before the logs enter the mill they are debarked by a mechanical debarker. The mill itself is modern, efficient and highly automated using automatic carriages with double cutting band saws, automatic trim saw, lumber stackers, and steam heated drying kilns. Approximately one week is required from the time the logs enter the mill until the dry lumber is ready to be shipped. This compares with an interval of three to nine months for the normal mill employing air drying techniques.

The operations of Gillies Bros. & Co. Ltd., demonstrate the successful manner in which modern handling techniques can be utilized by the logging and sawmilling industry.

WEDDING

DEVOLIN — GORDON

A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday, July 20th at 2:00 p.m., in Queensboro United Church, when Lorraine Roberta Gordon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gordon, of Queensboro, was united in a double-ring ceremony to Mr. John Frederick Devolin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ogle Devolin, of Madoc.

Rev. George G. Ambury performed the ceremony before a background of tall standards of pink and white gladioli and ferns. White satin bows marked the guest pews.

The wedding music was played by Mr. William Glover, and Mr. and Mrs. Grant Richardson, of Stirling, sang "O Father All Creating", previous to the ceremony and "O Perfect Love", during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a full-length gown, fashioned with a bouffant skirt of nylon net with lace yoke effect, scalloped inset bodice of nylon and lace trimmed with cupped sequins and simulated pearls. Her shoulder-length veil was of nylon tulle and was caught to a tiara of crystals and iridescent sequins. She carried a heart-shaped bouquet of red and white Sweetheart roses, interspersed with white carnations and white satin streamers.

Her attendants were Mrs. Basil Moore, sister of the bride, as maid of honour, in pink nylon. Bridesmaids Miss Sharon Devolin, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Phyllis Towns, of Trenton, friend of the bride, were gowned in Romantic blue nylon with matching headpieces and veils and white accessories. Each carried a nosegay of white Shasta 'mums with matching ribbon, centred with mint green carnations.

Bestman was Mr. Ross Devolin, brother of the groom, and ushers were Gerald Gordon, brother of the bride, and Basil Moore, brother-in-law of the bride.

Master Duane Bateman, of Madoc, was ring-bearer, and flowergirls were little Miss Kathy Moore, of Belleville, niece of the bride, and little Miss Charlene Barlow, of Bancroft, niece of the groom. Both were gowned in pale pink nylon and carried little baskets of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride, when a lovely turkey dinner was served in the spacious living room which was attractively decorated with large pink bells and matching streamers and table decorations and low crystal bowls of pink and white sweet peas. The bridal table was appointed with a white linen damask cloth and centred by an all-white three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, misted about the base with white tulle and pink roses. Tall white and pink candles in triple silver candelabra and the bridal flowers completed the nuptial setting. The bride cut her cake with an heirloom silver knife with ivory handle.

The bride's mother received her guests wearing a dress of pale blue rayon and nylon lace over taffeta with white accessories and corsage of yellow 'mums. The mother of the bridegroom was gowned in cinnamon brown with white accessories and corsage of yellow 'mums.

For the wedding trip to the States and Cape Cod, the bride chose a turquoise nylon chiffon dress with matching picture hat, white accessories and corsage of pink and white 'mums, centred with a yellow orchid. Guests were present from Oshawa, Bancroft, Madoc and Belleville.

WEDDING

SMITH — WARTMAN

Trinity United Church, Madoc, was decorated with baskets of yellow and white 'mums at the altar, and the guest pews were marked with pink roses on white bows, for the wedding on Saturday, July 27th, of Treva Fern Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wartman, of Madoc, to Orville Lee Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Smith, of Corbyville.

The Rev. George Ambury performed the double-ring ceremony. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Emma Reid and the soloist was Mrs. Bob Cobblewick, cousin of the bride, who sang before the ceremony "Because" and "I Love You Truly" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in a long-sleeved, floor-length gown of taffeta, topped with a Chantilly lace bodice and the square neckline was enhanced with hand-cut Chantilly lace scallops, sprinkled with sequins. The princess-styled waistline was adorned with self bow and flowing streamers in the back. The very bouffant skirt was encircled with appliques of Chantilly lace. The shoulder-length headpiece was of imported French illusion veiling. A necklace of pearls, gift of the groom, completed her costume.

She carried a bouquet of red Sweetheart roses. Miss Gail Wartman, Madoc, sister of the bride, was maid of honour, and wore a street-length dress of Buttercup yellow organza over taffeta, applied with white Swiss embroidered flowers, and matching white accessories. She wore a matching floral headpiece of fine imported tulle, and carried a bouquet of yellow and white 'mums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Jean Quinlan, Madoc, and Miss Ruth Bateman, Belleville. They wore dresses and headpieces of Centillon blue identical to the maid of honour, and carried bouquets of blue and white 'mums. The bride's attendants wore a single strand of pearls and matching earrings, gifts of the bride.

Miss Jill Moore, Madoc, was flower-girl and wore a bouffant dress of Buttercup yellow nylon over taffeta with matching headpiece and white accessories. She wore a gold locket, gift of the bride, and carried a basket of white and yellow 'mums.

Mr. Melville Thompson, Moira, attended the bridegroom and Mr. Norman Smith, Toronto, brother of the groom, and Mr. Bill Salmond, Kalamath, were ushers.

The reception was held in the Church Parlours where the bridal table was prettily appointed with white Damask cloth centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom. The bridal bouquets lent additional contrast. The bride's mother received in a slim sheath of turquoise rayon linen with matching three-quarter length jacket of silk organza, and white accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore flowing brown nylon sheer over flowered taffeta with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations.

For a wedding trip to New York and the Adirondacks, the bride chose a pink princess style dress with matching jacket and white accessories and a white orchid corsage. Out-of-town guests were present from Beamsville, Toronto, Oshawa, Belleville, Warkworth, Kingston and Peterborough.

Previous to her wedding, the bride was honoured with a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Glen Reid, Belleville, and also one at the home of Miss June Scott, Belleville, and a kitchen shower at the summer cottage of Mrs. Don Moore, Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside in Belleville.

AUTHORITY WATER TESTS MADE PUBLIC

Graham Bell, Chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority's Water Control Advisory Board, has announced that the results of water testing in the Moira Valley would be made public in future. Mr. Bell explained that this is the second year that the Authority has undertaken a program of sampling water at key points in the Moira River system. Last year, the results of the program were released to Authority members, municipal reeves and the medical officers for the municipalities primarily concerned. Mr. Bell said a number of enquiries had come in from interested citizens and he no longer appeared to be in the best public interest to keep the bacterial counts confidential. However, he suggested that the pattern of the test results rather than the isolated readings should be given primary attention. One isolated high reading may be caused by some abnormal circumstances which are unlikely to occur again but periodic high readings at the same location is an indication that some source of pollution exists in the vicinity.

Personnel of the Moira River Conservation Authority take the water samples at some thirty-two strategic locations along the rivers, creeks and lakes in the more populated part of the valley. One series of samples is taken one week and a series at alternate stations the next in order to give consistent coverage. Since Stoco Lake is a problem area, it is sampled at four locations each week and it is hoped to increase the frequency of sampling at the lake so they are taken every other day. Immediately, the samples are taken, they are shipped by express to Toronto and tested by the laboratories of the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Water Control Chairman Bell stated that his Board had adopted a policy of co-operating to the fullest possible extent with the Ontario Water Resources Commission in combating existing pollution and preventing new instances of pollution occurring in the Moira Valley. Pollution in the watershed is presently coming from four or five major sources plus a number of minor sources. Four years ago the number of major sources was closer to ten. With this present trend and the excellent co-operation of the Commission, the Authority expects to see all major sources of pollution eliminated in the next few years.

Mr. Bell pointed out the great importance of the elimination of pollution to the health and welfare of the community. Swimming in polluted waters can cause infection, he said. Serious pollution can result in fish kill such as occurred in the Moira below Foxboro in 1959 and below Corbyville in 1960. Water quality as well as quantity is a big factor when industries are considering desirable locations so anything that can be done to ensure good water can be said to increase the possibilities of new employers locating in the Valley. The elimination of pollution is also beneficial to the tourist industry in keeping up the appeal of the watershed to fishermen, swimmers and boating enthusiasts. One of the aims of the Authority is expending public funds on the Lingham Lake reservoir, on other reservoirs and on its forestry and extension programs, is to improve summer flow conditions in the valley. There are some advantages to having more dirty water, said Mr. Bell, but from the fishing, boating, swimming and water supply viewpoints, more clean water is definitely preferable. Thus, strenuous efforts to eliminate pollution appear to be complementary to efforts aimed at increasing flow in the river during the summer months. "Who knows," he said, "some day it may be better for the City of Belleville water supply to come from the Moira River rather than the Bay of Quinte which will likely be plagued with the algae problem for many years to come."

In comparing this year's figures with tests taken at the same locations in 1962, Mr. Bell noted that there appears to be a considerable improvement in the quality of the water at the mouth of the river now the Belleville sewage treatment plant is in partial operation. Last year in July and August the Authority recorded bacterial counts of 47,000, 5,000, 45,000 and 114,000, he said. This year the two tests at the end of July and the beginning of August indicated a count of 10,400 and 170.

The results of the water sampling that will be released to the public from time to time indicate the number of coliform bacteria in 100 cubic centimetres of water and readings of 200 or less should be obtained consistently where there is no appreciable pollution. As an example, Mr. Bell said the average reading obtained last year in Moira Lake was 83 compared to the average reading at the Tweed Park on Stoco Lake for the seven weeks commencing August 14th which was 108,900. The period concerned was immediately after the Village installed the new chlorinator on the outfall from the municipal septic tank system.

Mr. Bell indicated that the test results would be sent periodically to district newspapers in the form of a box-score or table for the section of the watershed covered by that particular publication.

WATER QUALITY TEST RESULTS
By your Moira River Conservation Authority in co-operation with the Ontario Water Resources Commission.
Bacterial Count - Per 100 c.c.
Moira River at Downey's Rapids - July 22-63 - 21; Aug. 6-63 - 47.
Black River at No. 7 Highway - July 15-63 - 25; July 30-63 - 96.
Deer Creek at No. 62, Madoc - July 15-63 - 17,000; July 30-63 - 1,300.
Deer Creek, 100 yds. below Sewage Plant - July 15-63 - 183,000; July 30-63 - 8,000,000.
Moira Lake at County Rd. Bridge - July 15-63 - 56; July 22-63 - 149; July 30-63 - 114; Aug. 6-63 - 102.
Moira River at Keller's Bridge - July 22-63 - 3; Aug. 6-63 - 86.

Note:-
1. The O.W.R.C. considers a bacterial count higher than 5 as unsafe for drinking and a count higher than 2,400 as unsafe for swimming.
2. Readings may fluctuate considerably due to variations in rainfall and amount of pollution materials added to the waters. Winds and current patterns can cause fluctuations particularly in lakes. The absence of considerable pollution is indicated where the readings are consistently less than 200.

SPORTS CELEBRITY DINNER AT TWEED

The Tweed Branch of the Canadian Legion is sponsoring a sports Celebrities dinner on September 11th, in aid of the Tweed-Hungerford Arena Fund. The arena is now under construction and proceeds from the $10.00-a-plate dinner would push the fund near its objective.

There has been a tremendous early response, and over 100 tickets have already been sold. The committee, under chairman Jim Halpenny, hope to reach capacity of 200 tickets sold well before the 11th.

Headlining the event will be guest speaker Red Storey of Montreal, former N.H.L. hockey referee and Toronto Argonaut football star. Storey is in great demand as an after-dinner speaker across Canada, and the Legion Committee is greatly pleased to obtain his services for this date. Other head-table guests signed to date include Bob Feller, all-time great American League Pitcher of Cleveland, Dave Mann of Toronto Argonauts, and Ted "Teeder" Kennedy, former captain and star of the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey Club.

Negotiations are still underway with many well-known personalities of the sports world and names will be announced at a later date.

Tickets are available by contacting Jim Halpenny at Crown Cleaners in Tweed, or Cartha Cassidy at Tweed Radio Electric.

TROPHIES PRESENTED AT STORRING FAMILY REUNION

The annual Storrington Reunion was held at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ash, Madoc Township, on Sunday, August 4th, where under somewhat cloudy and cool weather, over 170 members of the clan met for a day of picnicking and sports activities. Registration, under the able direction of Cecil Storrington, Bud Storrington and Alex Rushlow, took place from 10 a.m. till 12 noon, when everyone sat down to a bounteous lunch.

At 1:30 p.m., a past president and founder of the reunion, Joseph Ash, of Madoc, brought the gathering to order and explained the various activities of the afternoon. He expressed great sadness over the loss of one of the former executives, Arthur Hennings, of Stoney Creek, who had suddenly passed away on August 2nd. The President, Oscar Storrington, of L'Amable, was then introduced and spoke of the great joy he felt at seeing so many faces. He was followed by the Vice-President, Cecil Storrington, of Deloro, who also said a few words.

Following the addresses, the official reunion prayer was given and one minute of silence was observed in memory of the deceased members of the family.

During the business session, which was in charge of the President and Vice-President, the same executive was elected for another term, also the same working committees. It was agreed to leave the date the same for 1964, that is the first Sunday in August. The place of the next reunion was left up to the executive committee.

The sports for the afternoon included races, contests and a horse-shoe tournament.

Mrs. Fred Taylor, of Uxbridge, took on the task of bringing the births, marriages and deaths records up-to-date as nothing had been recorded since the printing of "Father's House" in 1960. Fred Taylor was the official photographer.

At 3:45 p.m., the sports - being completed, prizes were awarded to the following:-

Shoppers and trading stamps

Stores and supermarkets using trading stamps could probably drop the practice without losing many of their customers, according to a survey taken in the U.S.

Two-thirds of shoppers admitted they would be disappointed if stamps were dropped. But, eight out of ten shoppers said they would keep on shopping at the same stores with or without stamps. Only 3 percent said they would switch stores if trading stamps were eliminated. Another 12 percent said they would probably change, while five percent were indefinite.

Although most shoppers seemed to favor stamps to some degree, only seven percent gave this as the reason for shopping at a particular store. Reasons most frequently given were location, quality, courtesy, and prices.

The survey indicated that older people like trading stamps the most. People under 35 tend to shop more at stores without stamps. Also, stamps seem to ap-

ONTARIO BEEF RAISING SEEN

Ontario agriculture minister William Stewart said recently in Port Arthur his department is anxious to develop the beef raising potential of northwestern Ontario.

He said "this area is a natural for use of feed for finishing cattle" because twice as much hay is produced in the area than any other part of the province.

Stewart said beef cattle from western provinces now are shipped to eastern Ontario to be fattened and finished and then processed meat is returned to this area to supply of growing market. He said this situation is ridiculous.

BOATING WITH STAN DAVIES

"I have just bought a boat with lapped planks from one with butted planks which was called carvel-built.

Carvel is the English corruption of the Spanish and Portuguese word carvel which was a speedy ship and the type Columbus sailed to find this continent. It used this type of planking.

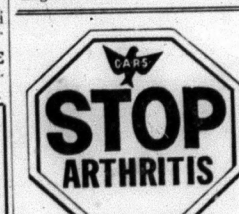

But the word originated in the Greek language and shows up today in modern French as Caravelle, a beautiful and speedy airplane. But that's enough history.

The modern clinkerbuilt or lapstrake boat is often a fast outboard craft that's tough and seaworthy.

It's tough and strong because the lapped planks in the hull have so much area in contact with each other, and they are "clinked" along each edge of every plank. This makes for a very strong construction unit.

The drawback is that lapstrake hull is usually heavier than one of similar size made of carvel-style planks or strips of sheet plywood.

But because of its good qualities the lapstrake design has been copied in reinforced plastic by many boat builders and the qualities of ruggedness carry through into the fibre glass models.

MAKING CLOTHES AND MONEY

The fashion business is famous for contradictions. For instance, the first summer heat wave in eastern Canada finds models displaying fur coats, while they model new bathing suit styles in December. This June, Fall fashion market week for buyers from across the land opened in Montreal in the usual sweltering temperatures.

Montreal is the largest centre of fashion manufacturers in Canada. Toronto is the second centre with a third smaller group of manufacturers located in Winnipeg. Vancouver has a scattering of fashion houses but store buyers converge on the big eastern cities to shop for the clothing they will offer Canadians in the months to come.

True to the contradictory tradition of fashion there is one notable exception to this concentration of garment makers. One of the largest manufacturers of clothing in the whole British Commonwealth is located in Edmonton, Alberta. It produces 12,000 garments per day in that western city.

Here is another contradiction. GWG was established in 1911 to make work clothes—overalls, uniforms and other such unglamorous but essential grab. A few years ago it added styling to its lines and invaded the fashionable world of sports and casual clothing with notable success. It has grown 63 percent in five years.

A Toronto business writer who recently got his first look at GWG wrote: "It is an astounding sight to poke your head in the door of GWG and be confronted with an area as large as a football field filled with sewing machines all going like mad. But there is neither madness nor confusion about the operation. There cannot be in a factory that operates on a mass production basis and yet produces 300 different lines of products in as many as 72 different sizes per line."

He was also fascinated to learn that GWG turns 340 miles of cloth — enough to cover the main rail line from Toronto to Montreal — into garments each month. What's more he found the firm uses 99.5 percent Canadian fabrics and stands ready to match its products against anything made in U.S. factories, as to price and quality.

The writer lauded the GWG efficiency and its ability to meet foreign competition and concluded that only one problem stood in the way of its continuing progress and future expansion. This problem is, of course, common to all the garment trade in Canada. It is the hit raids on the domestic clothing market being made by low-wage foreign producers. Somehow, he felt, Canadian manufacture should be given a defence against such raids before rather than after the damage has been done.

YIKES!

Farmer Mack B. Parrish of Dothan, Alabama says he'll look twice in the future before donning his rain boots. Parrish was pulling on one of his boots when a rattlesnake sank its fangs into his foot. The reptile had crawled into the boot which Parrish kept in an outbuilding for use in wet weather.

POPULAR PHRASE

The popular phrase applied to the RCMP, "They always get their man", was apparently coined by a visiting American newspaperman shortly after the Mounted Police force came in existence.

"English" walnuts are natives of Asia and southeastern Europe.

HERE'S A MODERN lapstrake or clinkerbuilt in moulded reinforced plastic. Note the reverse lap of the bottom "planks". This allows the water to flow more smoothly over the bottom and improves boat's performance.

POST FAMILY REUNION

The Post Reunion was held at Glen Allan Park, at beautiful Crowe Lake near Marmora, on Saturday, August 10th, with over eighty being in attendance. They came from Pontiac, Mich., Windsor, Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto, Harold, Oshawa, Birdsall, Peterboro, Batawa, Stirling, Belleville, Havelock, Foxboro, Apsley, Bannockburn, Eldorado, Ivanhoe, Cannifton, Madoc and Marmora.

Everyone enjoyed a most delightful time, renewing old friendships with relatives, some of which hadn't been present for several years. One especially, though 75 years young, had never attended the picnic before, he being one of three Don Posts present.

A delicious picnic dinner was served, after which races were held for the children. Prizes were given the winners as well as several other prizes, to the oldest person, the youngest person, the person coming the longest distance, the oldest married couple, the couple having the most children, and several other prizes, including most grandchildren, most recently married, the lady with the most buttons on her dress. A game was played by the grown-ups: each one with a blown-up balloon tied to his back and a roll of paper with which his partner burst it. A button-guessing contest enriched the winner by a jar of buttons.

It was decided to meet in the same place Saturday, August 3rd, 1964. All the Posts are cordially invited to attend, so please start now and plan to meet as one big Post family in 1964. "It's later than you think," and the chance only comes once a year.

A hearty vote of thanks goes to Miss June Post, of Peterboro, and her uncles, Warren and Bill Post, for their work in organizing and making this picnic such a success this year.

the fair with eight entrants competing.

David Burnside showed the top pair of gilts and took top honors in the achievement day standing, while David Foley, also of Madoc, was tops in showmanship.

And during the fair program David proved that he was a good judge of livestock, as well as being a good showman. Tuesday David was the top boy in the junior fair judging competition for juniors in the Quinte district.

In the achievement program, scoring a total of 914 points and also proved to be the best showman of the 25-member club.

But running a close second for showmanship honours, was Jane Thompson, who also finished second in the achievement day program.

Others finishing among the first five were Bill Vermilyea, Douglas Jarrell and Christine Brown.

Thursday morning the Hastings County Swine Club held its achievement day in the junior building at

I.O.O.F. and REBEKAH DECORATION SERVICE WELL ATTENDED

On Sunday, August 18th, I.O.O.F. Lodge 179 and Rebekah Lodge held their annual Decoration.

Under the marshaling of Bro. Tom Hawthorne, the parade left the Lodge Room at 2:30 p.m., to the music of Havelock Kiltie Bagpipe Band. At the cenotaph a wreath was placed by Bros. E. T. Nayler, John Bristol and Tom Hawthorne. At the cemetery the I.O.O.F. lodge was joined by the members of Oakdale Rebekah Lodge and visitors.

The order was highly honoured in having several Grand Lodge officers present, namely Bro. Earl Fox, Grand Master, Bro. Alfred Poulter, Grand Chaplain, Bro. Guy Bradshaw, Grand Messenger, Bro. Ken. Sine, Past Grand Patriarch and Grand Representative to Sovereign Grand Lodge, and Bro. Jack Atkinson, D.D. G. M. of District 45.

The opening charge was delivered by Bro. Les. Blakely and prayer by Bro. Alfred Poulter.

The beautiful bouquets were placed on the I.O.O.F. plot in memory of the deceased members and were arranged in the form of a large Cross by Bro. Perry Bronson, N. G., Bro. Alex. Johnston, V. G. A large wreath was placed in the centre of the cross by Bro. Leo Coveney, in memory of the deceased brothers who paid the supreme sacrifice in the previous World Wars.

The members stood at attention while Bros. Hawthorne Sr., R. P. Wellman and C. I. Ross sang, "The Old Rugged Cross." The Grand Master, Grand Chaplain and Grand Representative gave very appropriate addresses on Oddfellowship.

The concluding charges were given by Bro. Les. Blakely and Bro. Alfred Poulter, Grand Chaplain.

Visiting Oddfellows and Rebekahs were present from Belleville, Tweed, Stirling, Springbrook and Peterboro.

In the evening at 7:30 the Havelock Kilties gave a band concert in the park, which was enjoyed by those who attended.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

I had my annual injection of culture last week, and am now ready to resume my normal condition of boorish bourgeoisism. The shot, as usual, was painless physically, producing a feeling of mild stimulation, painful financially, producing an aftermath of hollow depression.

Because we plan to attend a convention at a swank spot next week, that ancient and honorable lament, "I haven't a thing to wear!" reared its hoary head. This gave birth to the inevitable twins: a visit to the bank manager and a trip to the city.

The latter, in turn, demanded that we take in a show. The only show in town was a "brilliant" British revue called "The Establishment," direct from rave reviews in New York. It stank.

That may not be quite the cultured way in which to review a revue, but it's an honest opinion. The critics probably blundered that the thing was "refreshingly frank" and "delightfully irreverent." I thought it was disgustingly frank and childishly irreverent.

The show did have a houp of amusing skits, including a clever parody of the Queen reading one of her speeches, but the remainder was labored and tasteless, about one jump and a bushel of English accents ahead of a college annual show. However, the audience, to prove its broad-mindedness, applauded wildly, while I sat glumly on my $3.50 seat, glowering like a true-blue royalist.

Just to make a proper mish-mash of the excursion, my wife, who was supposed to be shopping for some stunning late-summer clothes, came back to the hotel with nothing purchased but a winter coat which she couldn't resist.

Things were a little brighter on the week end, when we took a flyer to the Stratford Festival, that peculiar Canadian monument toward which we bow with reverence; beam with pride, and point out with honest indignation when people say, "Ah, you are Canadians got no culture."

Ten years ago, when the festival began (it was in a tent), we stayed, for three dollars, in a private home whose mistress turned out to be a nut, and our six-year-old son was left at home with Granny.

Things have changed. The festival is now in a handsome theatre, we stayed, for ten dollars, in the room-at-the-top of the shabbiest hostelry this side of the Atlantic, and our great gormless boy went off after the theatre to hear the folk-singers at a coffee house and didn't get back to the room until 2:30 a.m., at which point he heard some real folk-singing from his ain folk.

Stratford itself is unchanged—a pleasant mixture of ugliness and beauty in the town, sophistication and gawkerism in the audience, professionalism and amateurism in the performances. We enjoyed it thoroughly, as always.

I liked the hotel. Found the manageress in the kitchen, after waiting vainly at the desk for a while. She tried about eight skeleton keys before finding one that would open our door. Carried our own bags up three flights. No tip. Went down to the kitchen and got a bucket of ice. No charge, no tip. Used the phone in the lobby. No phone bill. Used the bathroom at the end of the hall. No paper.

Saturday night we saw Cyrano de Bergerac, with John Colicos in the lead. It was a grand Stratford spectacle, a great swirl of color and motion and poetry. But either I'm getting old and hard, or Colicos didn't quite bring it off. You're supposed to bawl like a baby as the gallant Cyrano dies at the end, and the only emotion I felt was impatience that he took so long about it.

Sunday afternoon, we "took in" a Schubert concert, featuring pianist Rudolph Serkin. He needed a shoe-shine, but he could really make that piano sing. He even enjoyed it himself, so much that he started, at one point, to sing along with Serkin, booming and humming away. I thought at first that it was some clog like me in the audience, carried away by the tune.

I could tell the concert was a great success, because a lot of insurance salesmen and tourists who had seen too many movies stood up and cried "Bravo!" at the end, something I could not quite bring myself to do should Queen Elizabeth and President John Kennedy do a surpassing soft-shoe shuffle on stage.

RURAL ENUMERATION SEPT. 3 - 6 INCLUSIVE

Premier John Robarts announced last Friday the following dates for enumeration for voters' lists for the September 25th general election:

Urban enumeration: August 26 to 29 inclusive.

Revision: September 13 and 14.

Rural enumeration: September 3 to 6 inclusive.

"Under our election laws as they have been developed since 1961, many provisions have been made to ensure that no qualified voter who wishes to vote need lose his franchise," Mr. Robarts said. "I have asked the chief election officer to make absolutely sure that all these provisions for the protection of the right of the voter to vote are made very clear in order that no one shall be left off the voters' lists."

The enumeration procedure, Mr. Robarts explained, is as follows:

After the lists have been posted, any person, whether the voter himself, candidate, an agent or a neighbour of the voter can notify the returning officer in writing of the omission of a voter from the enumeration list. These notices may be given to the returning officer any time up to and including the day before the revision starts.

Upon receipt of such notice the returning officer sends a team of special enumerators to enumerate the voter of whom notice has been given and any other qualified voter in the premises who may have been omitted. This re-enumeration may proceed up to the day before the close of the revision and the names so enumerated, in the absence of valid objection, are added by the revising officer to the lists on the last day of revision.

Any qualified voter may also make application to the revising officer in person to be added to the list or if unable to attend because of illness, absence, etc., application may be made on his behalf by a relative by blood or marriage or by his employer.

"This means," Mr. Robarts said,

LIBERAL LADIES HOLD MEETING IN MARMORA

The Hastings-Frontenac Ladies' Liberal Association held a dinner meeting at the Royal Hotel, Marmora, Thursday, August 8th, 1963.

Following a delicious turkey dinner, the President, Miss Mary Warren, welcomed everyone. She then introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. W. B. Davidson, Chairman of organization, Ontario Women's Liberal Association.

Mrs. Davidson encouraged the ladies to join the Association and urged them to attend the National Convention in Ottawa, October 28th, 29th and 30th. She gave several suggestions for the future work of the Association.

Mrs. George Genest, of Bancroft, thanked Mrs. Davidson on behalf of those present.

Miss Warren then called on Mr. William Shannon to speak and he encouraged the ladies in their efforts. Mr. Jack Davidson, President of the Hastings-Frontenac Liberal Association, was then called upon and he expressed pleasure over formation of the Ladies' Association.

"that the compilation of the urban lists is a continuing process which will continue throughout the latter part of August and for about the first half of September."

Even if a qualified voter in an urban polling subdivision fails to take advantage of these simple methods of having his name added to the list he may still, if he is on the municipal list, be vouched for by a voter whose name is on the provincial list, and sworn at the poll. This is a unique provision which was added to the Ontario Election Act in 1951.

With respect to rural polling subdivisions it is even simpler. Any qualified voter omitted from the lists by the enumerators may be vouched for and sworn at the poll. In such polling subdivisions he need not be on the municipal list.

and offered to help in any way.

The membership fee was discussed and set at fifty cents.

Mrs. Hugh Brady moved that the meeting adjourn.

Ever wonder about the fate of your old discarded car? Part of it could turn up in your new one, says Reader's Digest. Most old cars fall victim to wreckers eventually, and are hauled to giant machines designed to squeeze the last nickel out of them. Almost everything in a car can be reclaimed but glass and upholstery.

"Canada produces almost everything"

IF YOUR HOME is not complete without a hippo, you'll have to import one. Search as you will, not a hippo can be found from St. John's to Victoria.

But almost everything else can, and the wise buyer knows that every dollar spent on Canadian goods keeps Canadians working.

To keep our economy strong, to make better job opportunities, to create jobs for those young people coming on to the labour market, we all must be "label conscious." Before you buy, look at the label. If the price, design and quality are right, buy the product that is made here.

If each of us could divert just $2.00 a week from imported to domestic goods, the result could total $600,000,000 in Canada in one year! And that could help create 60,000 new jobs!

Buy a hippo if you must, but for almost everything else, check the label before you buy. It's in your own best interest. You help yourself, your neighbour and the whole province by giving Canadian products the opportunity to serve and satisfy you.

Diary of a Vagabond

Chronic Case of Meseumitis

In Hopewell Cape, Albert County, New Brunswick, there is a tiny museum that is just about the finest example of community effort I have ever seen. Almost as ancient as its oldest artifact, this final resting place for many household treasures from the district used to be the county register and tax office.

I paid two visits to this museum. The first with Borden Steeves, president of the Albert County Historical Society and advertising representative of the CN's Department of Public Relations at Moncton. On that occasion I signed the guest book, exclaimed sincerely about the outstanding displays, collected one of the museum's attractive brochures and departed in the sedate manner appropriate for museum visitors.

Near the fringe of the museum grounds is the home of Homer Betz. I never did discover what his official title is, though I learned he is chief discoverer of worthy items for the museum, keeper of the keys, carpenter, historian, curator and general factotum. While I was hobnobbing with his roses, peonies, two black Persian cats and a dozen or so hungry mosquitoes his enthusiasm for the museum's latest acquisition, the nearby jail, could no longer be contained by social platitudes. Quickly he organized a raiding party consisting of his wife Mabel, two neighbours, a teenager, and this Vagabond. He headed the parade carrying a flashlight and Coleman lamp while we marched behind him through knee-high timothy to the crumbling steps of the ancient building.

It could have been the dust that was gently enveloping us, or the creak door as it closed behind me that made it so easy for me to understand the exuberant enthusiasm of these museum buffs.

The tales Betz told in the musty dungeon of drunks chained to the floor until they sobered up from their moonshine binge more than a hundred years ago, were convincing. The old iron ring is still there, secure in the of the rusty hinges; it might even have been the clang of the heavy iron heavy planks of the floor, though I was told that now the sobriety of the county has done away with the need for a jail. Its main purpose from now on will be to afford a setting for pioneer furniture, a store room and a record room for cataloguing the museum's contents.

Museums Not Alike

There are those who will claim that museums are alike the world over. Albert County Museum seemed different. Its situation could have had something to do with this assessment. Towering over the tiny records and tax office building is an architectural masterpiece. This is the County Court House reputed to have been designed by a New Englander and is the only one of its kind in the Maritimes.

Gradually this group of lovely old buildings will be surrounded by parklands. Nearby is a quaint little library, in front are two cannons presented to the community for its successful Victory Loan Campaign during World War I. There is also a huge anchor reclaimed from the banks of the river that flows by. All these remind visitors and inhabitants alike of the tragedy and glory that has been the heritage for so many years of the people in this historical part of Canada.

HAVE YOU A QUESTION ON UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you.

Q.-I live with my father at his home, rent free. I am employed by him on a weekly basis. His business is located at the same address. If I should lose this job would I be eligible for unemployment insurance benefit providing I met all other requirements although I still lived in his home and paid no rent. If living here disqualified me how far would the Commission consider to be far enough away that I would not be limiting my availability by my unavoidable contact at times with his business?

A.-The first question to be clarified is whether the employment with your father is insurable employment. More particulars are required before such a determination can be made. The second question concerns your unemployment. If you become unemployed, the fact that you reside at the same address would not, of itself, disqualify you from the receipt of benefit. The matter of the free accommodation which you enjoy even when unemployed may have to be considered in determining your weekly benefit entitlement.

Q.-What view does the Commission take of a person who, while drawing benefit does such chores as shovelling snow, fixing a water pump, or other things everyone does in and around his own home to keep from being idle, when it also benefits another person or business?

A.-A person may do such chores around his own home without it affecting his benefit entitlement, provided his availability for other full time work is not affected. However, when he performs such work for another person or business he must report full particulars to his local office including the amount of any payment received for this work and regardless of whether any payment is received.

Q.-What is the extent of proof of demands from the claimant for benefit? Why are the limitations of this "availability" so variable and elastic?

A.-A claimant must prove that he is able, willing and ready to accept immediately any offer of suitable employment and his availability for work must not be so limited regarding conditions of employment, reasonable conditions of employment, including type of work, rate of pay and area of employment, that reasonable opportunities of employment do not exist. Because the conditions under which employees work may vary greatly, each case must be decided on its own merits taking into consideration such factors as the conditions under which the claimant previously worked and the length of time he has been unemployed.

Q.-The union I belong to is considering negotiating with our company for a guaranteed annual wage. There has been some objection to our going after this form of security on the grounds that we would no longer be eligible for unemployment insurance benefit when laid off. Is this correct?

A.-Full particulars of the proposed plan would be required before a definite answer can be given as to whether moneys received under such plan would affect the right to receive unemployment insurance benefit.

Q.-If unemployment insurance is comparable to fire insurance and thus only insures a person against the "risk" of losing his employment, why is it compulsory?

A.-Unemployment insurance is comparable to fire insurance in that in both cases protection is afforded against a risk. Too often unemployment insurance is regarded as a savings account and the plea made that "because I have paid in for so many years, I should get something out". Many persons insure their property against fire and when, on disposing of that property on which no fire took place, would not think of going to the fire insurance company asking for a refund because of no claim. As to the compulsory nature of unemployment insurance the reason is this. It is desirable under a scheme of social insurance to keep the premiums (contributions) low. This is facilitated if the scheme is compulsory because the risk is spread over a large group. However, if the matter of protection were left to the individual it is safe to assume that mainly the poorer risks would participate, while those who thought they were unlikely to require the protection, would not. Commercial insurance, which is voluntary, copes with this by refusing bad risks or by increasing their premiums for them because of the additional risk taken. A Government scheme has no such choice but must accept all coming within its orbit if it is to provide protection for all those for whom the government must accept responsibility. To do so then, at a reasonable cost, demands that all participate.

Q.-I am a married man with eight children, receiving $30. a week unemployment insurance benefit. My neighbour has only his wife and himself to support, but receives the same amount. Why is this? Also, my brother, who is single, with no dependents, has to pay the same unemployment insurance contributions as I do, although he cannot draw anywhere near the same benefit I do. This is not fair either. Why is it so?

A.-The rate of benefit payable to an insured person when unemployed is related to the rate of his previous earnings in order to indemnify him for a certain portion of the loss he has suffered. Since the Unemployment Insurance Act is an insurance plan, not a form of public assistance, the benefit is paid without detailed inquiry into the needs or the means of individual claimants. However, in one broad way the Act, being social insurance, recognizes the greater need as a group of those who have dependents and provides a higher rate of benefit for this group than for those who have no dependents. Nevertheless all insured persons who are in the same earning range pay contributions at the same rate. This is set on the assumption that the majority of contributors will have no dependents during the early part of their working lives but will acquire dependents at a later period.

Q.-As an employer, why should it matter if an ex-employee of mine whitewashes the reasons for his dismissal in order to qualify for unemployment insurance benefits, so long as I have no objection to his doing so?

A.-When an ex-employee of yours applies for benefit, both he and yourself are required to state, in writing, the reason for his separation from employment. If the ex-employee whitewashes the reason for his dismissal and you back up his statement, you are considered to have entered into collusion with your ex-employee.

In addition, the statement which you submitted, in writing, is false and was made knowingly, which makes you guilty of an offence under 106A of the Act. You may be prosecuted for this offence.

Employers should always remember that benefits paid to non-entitled persons drain the Fund, which may later require higher premiums to be paid by the employer, as well as the employee. Your action may therefore cost you money in the future in the form of higher premiums.

Q.-One of my employees who has no family boarded at my house. Your investigators came to inspect my records and cancelled the stamps I had put in his book. Why was this done?

A.-Without full details of the investigation, our answer must necessarily be of a general nature.

The fact that your employee boarded at your house has no connection with the cancellation of the stamps you affixed in his book. It would appear that the stamps were cancelled because your employee was performing non-insurable employment. Stamps of a correct denomination are never cancelled if the employee is working in insurable employment.

64 FATALITIES ACROSS CANADA DURING WEEKEND

Accidents took a total of 64 lives across Canada during the weekend—28 of them in Quebec.

The Quebec toll included five nuns and a nurse killed in a Saturday crash near Rivière-du-Loup, and four young children and their teen-age baby-sitter burned in a two-storey farmhouse near Asbestos.

The province had 13 other traffic deaths and four drownings.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times recorded 49 deaths on the highways, nine persons drowned, five slain by fire and one accidentally shot.

Ontario reported 12 fatalities, 11 in traffic and one drowning. British Columbia had a drowning and six road deaths—five of them in one crash on the Trans-Canada Highway.

There were five traffic deaths in Alberta and one person drowned in Saskatchewan. Manitoba reported a drowning and an accidental shooting.

New Brunswick had four road deaths, Newfoundland two, Prince Edward Island one and Nova Scotia reported a highway fatality and a drowning.

The figures do not include industrial accidents—such as the one that killed four men in a B. C. pulpwood plant Sunday—known suicides or slayings.

PEEL ONIONS UNDER COLD WATER

Almost everyone who has invaded a kitchen has been reduced to tears, at one time or another, by a recipe that starts "Slice three large onions".

Will power doesn't help, for there is a good reason why onions make you cry. Covering the eye is a very sensitive membrane known as the conjunctiva. It lines the inner surface of the eyelids and gives the surface of the eyeball a transparent covering. This is what hurts when a small pebble or fleck of dust irritates the eye.

In the case of the onion, according to researchers from the Murine Company, this vegetable contains an oily chemical which evaporates into the air and is highly irritating to the conjunctival membrane. To help the situation, the tear glands begin producing in an effort to wash the vapor away. Eye drops may also be used to relieve the irritation.

However, people who like fresh onions need not despair. Holding them under cold water while you peel will be a helpful aid when you are preparing your favorite recipe.

No city on earth has given the human race a more dazzling array of medical benefits than Basel, Switzerland. Chemicals, vitamins, hormones and drugs to fight scores of disease from TB to mental illness have poured out of its laboratories. It was the scientists of Basel who gave the world its first major weapon against malaria, DDT and the first pills to lower high blood pressure, says Reader's Digest.

SOCIETY MEMBERS TO TOUR CENTRE, OTHER SITES

On Saturday, August 24th, members and friends of the Hastings County Historical Society will tour the Madoc Art Centre and other historical sites in the Madoc-Tweed area.

The invitation to visit the Madoc Art Centre was extended by Mr. Roy Cadwell, the centre's executive director.

In addition to visiting the Art Centre, just west of Actinolite on No. 7 Highway, the tour will also visit Queensboro, Madoc, the O'Hara Mill, the mining area, and other places of interest. The details of the tour are being drawn up by Mr. Roy Cadwell. Members of the historical society and others interested in this excursion should contact either Gerald Boyce (WO 8-5023) or Tom Ransom (WO 8-8693) daytimes or WO 8-9560 evenings.

Earlier this summer, the Hastings County Historical Society sponsored a very successful tour to Toronto to visit the Black Creek Pioneer Village and Old Fort York. Thirty-six persons travelled by Rawson Bus to those historic spots and all enjoyed a wonderful time.

ELDORADO AND BANNOCKBURN W.I.

The Eldorado and Bannockburn Women's Institute held their August meeting at the home of Mrs. Harold Chambers with twenty-one present.

The president, Mrs. Clayton Blackburn, opened the meeting with the Ode and repeating the Mary Stewart Collect. Mrs. Blackburn gave a humorous reading entitled, "This is Progress, Mrs. Harold Chambers read the minutes of the July meeting. Roll call was answered by a "Historical landmark."

Mrs. Chambers read several thank-you notes. Business was discussed.

A reading was given entitled, "God Giveth Us Memory."

Mrs. Hugh Barker had charge of the program, which was on Historical Research. She gave a splendid outline of many places where the Indians had once lived and their way of life. She also outlined a trip of interest to several points west, when she as a school teacher, had taken a bus-load of children. A contest was much enjoyed, and Mrs. In't Velt sang an old school song in Dutch.

The meeting closed with the Institute Prayer. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

Gardens planned especially for the blind are scattered throughout England and the United States; mostly in parks; reports Reader's Digest. At the Brooklyn Botanic Garden many signs and labels are written in Braille. "Please touch the flowers," they say; and the flowers have been chosen especially for the enjoyment of the sightless. For easy access the Brooklyn garden has gently sloping ramps.

DUCK SEASON TO OPEN SEPTEMBER 21st

With the complete protection of certain species of ducks now being enforced and the reduction in bag limits of others, it is essential that enforcement agencies and management people unite to enforce what is necessary and to teach sportsmen the art of identifying ducks and other waterfowl.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are responsible for the enforcement of the Migratory Birds Convention Act throughout Canada. In Ontario, officers of the Department of Lands and Forests who have always acted as game officers under this Act, have now got the strength of Canada's oldest police force behind them as "Mounties" and Conservation Officers are now working in close co-operation with one another.

In Kingston, on August 14, 15 and 16, the "Mounties" held a waterfowl identification course and some of the personnel from the Tweed District attended. Personnel from the Canadian Wildlife Service, Ottawa, were present to assist with the course and to discuss matters pertaining to the M.B.C. Act.

At the end of the course, a test was given to ensure that all the officers are competent in identifying ducks and other waterfowl.

If sportsmen are out after ducks come September 21 (in Tweed District) the responsibility will be on the gunner to protect canvasbacks and redhead ducks. No mistake ducks will be allowed. The wood duck is holding its own and again this year hunters can take 2 in their daily bag limit.

Summary:—
Open Season — September 21st to December 14th.

Ducks (in the aggregate)—5 per day - 10 in possession, none of which shall be canvasback or redhead. Not more than 2 wood ducks may be taken in the daily limit. After October 27, 2 additional scaup or goldeneye may be taken per day. Mergansers are not counted in the daily bag or possession limit.

Geese — 5 per day, 10 in possession.

Rails, coots and gallinules (in aggregate) — 5 per day, 10 in possession.

Wilson's Snipe — 8 per day, 16 in possession.

Woodcock — 8 per day - 16 in possession.

105 FOREST FIRES IN TWEED DISTRICT THIS SEASON

We have gone through a good week from the fire danger point of view with enough rain to keep the danger rating down in the low to medium range for most of the period.

A summary of fires in the District so far this season shows a total of 105 outbreaks with 464 acres burned over. Most of the area burned occurred during late April and during the month of May. Eighty-one of these fires were attributed to human carelessness and should not have occurred had reasonable precautions been taken. Lightning caused the remaining twenty-four fires.

Nearly 80 per cent of forest fires start through lack of care on the part of people travelling in the woods. If you are using the forest or contemplating spending time there and plan to eat your lunches in the bush, take your tea or coffee in a thermos bottle, and thus do away with the exceedingly dangerous camp fires.

Fires in the forest, other than lightning fires, are only started by improperly burning material. Protect your interest in the forest by putting that camp fire, the cigarette butt or that pipe heel out, - dead out.

WILL PURCHASE ADDITIONAL LAND FOR REFORESTATION

With additional grants forthcoming from Federal Government, through amendments to the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act, the Moira River Conservation Authority will be able to acquire double the acreage for reforestation purposes. Normally, the Authority purchases up to 2,000 acres each year. According to T. C. Graham, Forestry Advisory Board Chairman, 100,000 acres will be under the Authority's supervision eventually.

The value of such reforestation areas cannot be overlooked. They improve water absorption by impeding the melting of snow in spring, and reduce the run-off after rainfall. Both result in a slow-down in the recession of the water table.

The maintenance of water level along the course of the Moira has become a matter of grave concern, and the increased acreage of reforested areas should help to reduce the problem.

LANDED 30" PIKE

Mrs. Don Donaldson, a camper on Upper Moira Lake, was able to supply a fish dinner for the family when she landed a 30-inch pike while sitting in front of her cottage. Mrs. Donaldson heard a splash in the water and taking a 25c fishing outfit caught the pike about four feet from shore. Mrs. Donaldson revealed that she received double satisfaction from the catch when the men in the family returned home empty handed, after covering the lake with all their expensive fishing gear.

STOCO LAKE FERTILE GROUNDS FOR MUSKIE

Each year a few ardent maskinonge fishermen converge on Stoco Lake at Tweed and as a general rule, are successful in landing several good sized muskies during the season.

Recently the Department of Lands and Forests set four trap nets to collect a few fish specimens for showing in aquariums at the Belleville Fair. During the two days of netting operations in Stoco Lake, it was surprising to note the number of large sized muskies that were taken in the impounding nets. One net alone fishing overnight caught 10 maskinonge, none of which were less than 40 inches in length. Other nets caught specimens over 45 inches long and weighing close to 30 pounds. All were released to the water unharmed.

Stoco Lake, because of its shallow, weedy, productive nature, is one of the better habitats for maskinonge in the district. Anglers who are willing to spend sufficient time, with adequate tackle could well be rewarded for their efforts by catching one of these fine fish.

PROVINCIAL ELECTION SEPTEMBER 25TH

Ontario Progressive Conservative government, in power for more than two decades, will seek another mandate from the province's voters in a general election Wednesday, Sept. 25th, Premier Roberts announced Thursday.

The premier's announcement ended weeks of speculation on the polling date, although most recent guesses had narrowed it down to the final week of September.

The announcement came at a press conference at Queen's Park, during which Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe brought formal dissolution to the province's 26th legislature by signing a writ prepared at a cabinet meeting earlier Thursday morning.

All members of the cabinet—it was reshuffled only three days ago—flashed the premier as he announced the election date.

Enumeration in urban areas of the province will be held Aug. 26-29, the premier's office announced later. The count of voters in rural areas will be held Sept. 3-6. Mr. Roberts said he did not expect any difficulty in preparation of the voters' list, although some opposition criticism had been heard that enumeration during the vacation period might cause many persons absent on holidays to be overlooked. Urban revision counts will be held Sept. 13-14.

Minutes after the premier's announcement Liberal Leader Wintermeyer issued a statement saying his party is ready and expressing confidence that the voters will defeat "a Conservative party which has run out of steam." Earlier Donald MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, forecast that the NDP will win 55 of the 108 legislative seats at stake.

The premier told reporters that with important federal-provincial conferences ahead "it is imperative that we be left in no doubt that we speak for the people of Ontario."

Mr. Roberts said he had considered a provincial election in late spring. But following two federal elections in less than a year "and the inconclusive results of the last federal election held in April and the period of instability and uncertainty which followed in its wake, it was decided that in the circumstances the late spring election would have an unsettling effect on our economy and would be viewed with disfavor by our people."

The Progressive Conservative government's formal term would have come to an automatic end next June if allowed to run its full course.

WEDDING

PACK-PHILLIPS

Rings and vows were exchanged in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, on Saturday, August 3rd, as Dorothy Helen Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Phillips, became the bride of Douglas Frederick Pack, of Deloro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pack, of Eldorado.

Baskets of yellow, white and mauve gladioli and ferns banked the altar as the Rev. Robert Stewart performed the ceremony and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The wedding music was played by Mr. Murray Brown, and Mrs. James Heath sang, "O Perfect Love," and "I'll Walk Beside You."

Finished with a chapel train, the bride's fully bouffant hoop-skirted gown was of white taffeta. It was trimmed with appliques at rounded neckline, a bow at the waistline, and had long pointed sleeves. Her veil of silk illusion was shoulder-length at the front and dropped to waist-length at the back. It was caught in a crown, set with pearls and rhinestones. Ribbon streamers fell from the white Bible on which she carried red roses with Stephanotis.

Miss Irene Phillips, a cousin of the bride, was her maid of honor. The groom's sister, Miss Jean Pack, was the bridesmaid, and Miss Lorrie Phillips, a niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Their short bouffant skirts were of mauve nylon chiffon over taffeta with bodices of matching lace scalloped at the neckline, and they wore matching chiffon-roses with windblown veils as headpieces. Each carried a large nosegay of white 'mums with yellow and mauve pom-poms.

As flower girls, Misses Karen and Kelly Phillips, nieces of the bride, were lovely in bouffant dresses of yellow nylon chiffon over taffeta. They wore matching chiffon headpieces, yellow shoes, white socks and gloves, and were carrying miniature nosegays of the same flowers as the seniors.

Mr. Gerald Pack was his brother's groomsmen. The ushers were Glenn Phillips, brother of the bride, and George Robinson, friend of the bridegroom.

The guests were present from Shawville, Que., Scarborough, Gravenhurst, Madoc, Dunbarton, Trenton, Peterborough and Marmora.

Mrs. Phillips received the guests in the parish hall. She was wearing a slim sheath of powder blue shantung with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations. The groom's mother wore a cranberry shade shantung dress and jacket with white accessories. Her corsage was of blue tinted dress and jacket with white accented and white carnations.

When the bridal couple were leaving for a honeymoon at Niagara Falls and points south, Mrs. Pack wore a three-piece suit of powder blue shantung with white accessories and her corsage was of pink sweetheart roses.

WEDDING

BROWNSON-LAJOLE

Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, August 3rd, when Anne Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lajole, of Marmora Twp., became the bride of Douglas Albert Brownson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Brownson, of Madoc.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. P. Healy. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Hugh

The bride chose a street-length gown of white peau de soie with embroidered yoke, trimmed with seed pearls, her veil of net with border of Chantilly lace fell to finger-tip length from a pearl and rhinestone head-dress. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white Stephanotis.

Miss Donna McFaul, of Peterboro, niece of the groom, was bridesmaid. She wore pale blue silk organza over taffeta with matching bolero of lace and headdress of organza petals with over-the-face veil. She carried white albatross daisies and yellow roses.

Mr. Albert Lajole, brother of the bride, was the groom's attendant.

The wedding dinner was served in Sacred Heart Parish Hall and the reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a sheath dress of aqua with white hat and accessories and a corsage of pale pink roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who chose a two piece navy dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

After the reception the bride and groom left on a trip to the United States, the bride wearing a three-piece turquoise and white linen suit with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Guests were present from Buffalo, N. Y., Peterboro, Belleville, Cobourg, Omemee, Campbellford, Tweed, Flinton, Madoc and Marmora.

WEDDING

MUMBY-HENNESSY

On July 13th, at 2:30 p.m., a lovely double-ring wedding was solemnized in the Madoc Pentecostal Church by the Rev. Calvin Morgan, when Carol Elizabeth Hennessy daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Corroll Hennessy, of Madoc Township, became the bride of George Clements Mumby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mumby, of Harold.

White satin bows designated the guest pews and large bouquets of summer flowers adorned the altar.

Mrs. J. Donly rendered the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. H. Brintnell.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of wa-z-length white brocaded satin with skirt of alternating gores of satin and net. The long sleeves were lily-pointed. She wore a shoulder-length veil of tulle held by a tiara of lace with pearls and rhinestones, and carried a semi-cascade of Better-time red roses and babies' breath.

The matron of honour was Mrs. Eugene Sandford, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Werner Brauer and Miss Louise Hennessy, all sisters of the bride. All were dressed identically in street-length gowns of chiffon over taffeta, with bateau necklines in pastel shades of blue, yellow and pink respectively, with white accessories. They wore white flowered headpieces with over-the-face veils, and carried nosegays of 'mums tinted to match their gowns.

Mr. John Ryan, of Harold, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. David Hennessy, brother of the bride, and Mr. Donald Mumby, brother of the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

The reception was held in the Church Sunday School rooms which were decorated with pink and white streamers. The bridal table was centred with the three-tier wedding cake, topped with lily-of-the-valley and doves carrying miniature rings.

The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a blue sheath, beige accessories and corsage of white and blue feathered carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a printed silk dress, beige accessories and a corsage of yellow 'mums.

Guests attended the wedding from Picton, Belleville, Peterboro, Scarborough, Stirling, Harold, Windsor and Trenton.

The bride and groom are residing at Harold.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was given a miscellaneous shower in O'Hara's Community Hall, by the ladies of the community and the bride's church.

A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents on July 28th, when relatives congratulated the bride and groom and viewed their gifts.

Some seventy-five friends and neighbours gathered at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mumby, and presented the young couple with a space-saver.

Our universe is expanding at fantastic speeds, says scientists quoted in the Reader's Digest. Other galaxies are rushing away from our own; the Milky Way; at velocities approaching or perhaps equalling the speed of light. This startling fact was established when astronomers found that starlight showed considerable redness; a characteristic of light travelling away from an observer.

Become A NEW YOU—With Sun Glass Glamour

By HELEN PARMELEE

How would you like to look today? As if you were strolling along the Riviera? Then tie a Brigitte Bardot scarf over your head and don wrap-around bikini sunglasses.

And tomorrow, for a change of mood? Like a svelte fashion model? Try a sheath dress, a far-out straw hat, and narrow, squared-off, jewelled sunglasses.

And the next day, if you dare to be different again? Want to create a little girl "Baby Jane" effect? Wear a gingham gown, Oliver hairdo and white round-rimmed sunglasses to give you that wide-eyed look.

The latest

It's the latest summer game . . . changing looks by changing sunglasses.

Mind you, your husband, boyfriend or father won't recognize you from one day to the next . . . but it can be fun fooling them.

Never before have so many different pairs of sunglasses been on the market; never before have sunglasses been so in vogue as fashion accessories.

Many of them are inexpensive, so you can afford to have a couple — or several — pairs to create the mood you wish to have at the moment.

Tinted glasses

You can choose different colors to go with your summer frocks. And if you wear glasses regularly, your optician can make up your prescription lenses in a tinted glass and put them in fancy frames.

For an afternoon's amusement, browse through some drug stores, specialty shops, department stores or opticians and try on an assortment.

week when I was examining the stock: "We have so many different styles you wouldn't believe it. But still women come by, try them all on, and then say, think you'll be getting any more in?"

The latest style is the European bikini sunglasses which achieve a covered-up, wrap-around look and can be worn by both men and women. Color tints are getting lighter in shades of green or even see-through amber.

High-style

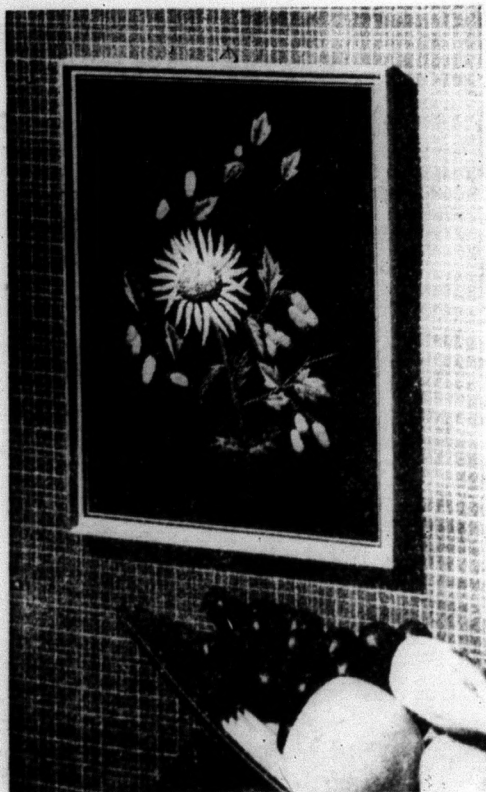

From France and Italy come delicate, high-style sunglasses, many of them with narrow lenses, square frames, and jewelled trim. The upswept, doe-eyed look is OUT this year.

Not only are sunglasses fashionable, they keep milady from squinting constantly in the sun and quickly acquiring crows'-feet lines at the outer corners of the eyes.

Yes indeed, sunglasses have come a long way since Ben Franklin's time when they were ordinary spectacles smoked over a household lantern to protect the eyes from the glare of the sun . . . and called "shades".

PICTURE

Radiant colors, a good design, and simple stitchery, make this picture a winner. It is a lovely way to brighten your living room or bedroom. This could also be made as a bazaar item. For Leaflet No. E-8221 send 25c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to:

William Shakespeare

A boy who seemed inspired

By F. PITT CLARK

If there was one thing more exciting than another in the life of young William Shakespeare, son of a glove-maker at Stratford-upon-Avon, England, it was when the actors from London went there to perform their plays.

William Shakespeare (1564-1616), who was to become a world-renowned poet and dramatist, was then just a boy at the local grammar school.

ROAMED THE COUNTRYSIDE

He did well at his lessons. Out of school he went with the other boys, roaming the countryside, fishing and swimming.

But there was something different from the others about William Shakespeare when he wandered in the great out-of-doors.

He wasn't just looking at nature. He was "drinking in" all he saw. He seemed inspired . . . the poet in him was being born.

But, for the moment, the one thing he wanted more than anything was to be an actor. He was always acting in everything he did.

His gift of words was beginning to develop.

Will Shakespeare grew into a high-spirited young man, and there is the famous story, which seems from evidence likely to be true, about the cause of his leaving Stratford for London.

It is said it was not so much his ambition to be an actor as to get out of the reach of Sir Thomas Lucy, a landowner, whose deer he and some other young fellows had been poaching.

TRAMPED

In his early twenties off he tramped to London, about 90 miles southeast of Stratford.

It was a long trudge, but for

Will Shakespeare it was the road to fortune and fame.

Not that he leapt into either at once. Indeed, he seems when first in London to have been an errand boy or to have hung about outside the theatres minding the horses of the rich patrons who went in to see the plays.

SMALL PARTS

Soon, however, he actually became an actor. His parts at first, of course, were small, although he appeared before Queen Elizabeth I several times.

Will Shakespeare was a very good actor, and gradually he was given more important parts. But he was not the sort to remain an actor and, thinking that he could improve on some of the plays in which he took part, he set out to learn the art of play-writing.

ENTHRALLED

Three or four years after he arrived in London the first of the plays of William Shakespeare, the poet with the magic pen, who could wring the heart, bring tears to the eyes, chill the spine or cause a man to shake with laughter, burst upon an enthralled London.

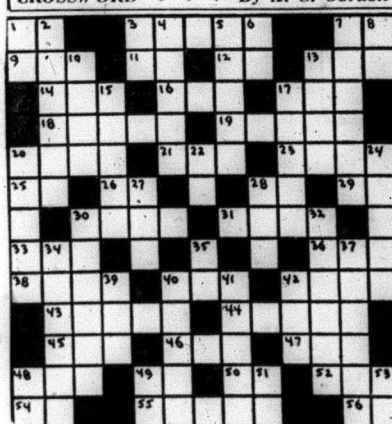

The rest of this story is history. Altogether there are 37 plays credited wholly or in part to Shakespeare. In them there are 106,007 lines and 814,780 words, with 1,277 speaking characters.

"Hamlet" has the longest part, with 11,619 words to deliver.

Susan Gets A Lift

... From Gymnastics

—HER SISTERS DO, TOO

The Scarboro neighbors of the McDonnell family don't have to turn to TV for entertainment these fine warm days.

All they have to do is to look out their windows for a free show over the low back garden fences.

And what do they see? Tiny tots tumbling all over the McDonnell backyard and not-so-tiny—but more shapely—types leaping, cartwheeling, rolling, backflipping over the dawn.

The nine children of Mr. and Mrs. Ross McDonnell are a bouncy lot... especially the six girls who are all interested in varying de- grees, in gymnastics.

A BORE

The three boys prefer to leave the liveliness to the girls; Brian, 20, prefers football; Ross, 4, finds it all a great bore; Freddie, 2, bounces along in his own inimit- able style.

But the ladies don form-fitting leotards and toss themselves and each other all over the landscape. The most serious gymnast in the family is Susan, 15, who came second in the Canadian champion- ships last year and won a silver medal in free callisthenics at the Pan-American Games in Brazil this year.

Following gracefully in their sister's footsteps are Teresa, 9, and Nancy, 8.

Teresa placed first in the tryo class for under-14's recently in the Toronto championships and first in the novice-under-16 class in the Ontario championships. Nancy placed third in these events.

CATCH UP

Admits Susan with a smile: "I

I don't keep working hard, those two will catch up with me."

Susan's older sister Anne Marie, 18, a stenographer-typist, started it all when the family moved to Scarboro eight years ago and played on a softball team in the summer.

Rather than break up the team for the winter, the coach took them to a gymnasium and "we took to gymnastics with a natural talent we didn't know we had."

Anne Marie used to beat Susan five years ago, but now spends more time as an Argo majorette, and lets Susan take the honors. Sisters Margaret, 13, and Mary Lou, 10, both work out, but with less enthusiasm than Susan, Teresa and Nancy.

TOO OLD

As for mother, she's still sport- ing bruises from trying to stand on her hands during a spurt of energy. "I can easily stand on my head," laughs Mrs. McDonnell, "but I guess I'm getting too old to stand on my hands."

Gymnastics for girls is a graceful sport, and is described by Susan's coach, Mrs. Marilyn Savage, as "definitely a feminine sport. The judges look for pretty movements rather than a show of strength. It takes a lithe build, flexibility, nat- ural grace, and an attractive ap- pearance to be a good gymnast."

Because of this, Susan, Teresa and Nancy take ballet lessons one night a week. Canada's former gymnastic champion, Ernestine Russell, felt she could have done better at the Olympics if she had had ballet training says Susan.

EVENING TRAINING

In addition, Susan spends two or three hours each evening in the gymnasium of Winston Churchill Collegiate and longer periods on week ends.

Teresa and Nancy practise two nights a week at the Scarboro Boys Club. Sandra coaches them one other night a week, and they try to get in some time on the parallel bars on the week ends too.

For the parents of nine chil- dren, their daughters' athletic careers can be costly.

The girls all have dancing leotards and slippers, plus special stretch fabric gymnasium leotards and tumbling shoes which wear out every few weeks. And Susan travels to Florida and Michigan for special clinics.

But for Mrs. McDonnell, it's worth it: "The first time I saw the girls perform, my eyes filled up. Free callisthenics can be so beautiful."

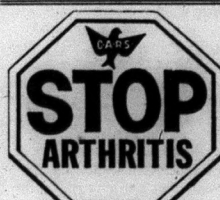

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfort- able. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get FASTEETH at drug counters everywhere.

LAWN SPRINKLING

You can spike the lawn autom- atically if you equip the mower once or twice a year with a re- placement roller turned out from wood with axle rods set in holes drilled in the ends. Drive nails part way into the roller and clip off the heads to provide spikes that will be pushed into the lawn as the mower moves.

ON THEIR HEADS: Are they heading for a fall? Not the ladies of the McDonnell household, whose idea of an after- noon's fun is standing on their heads in their Scarboro backyard. Baby Freddy, 2, (right) watches with amusement the agile antics of his mother, Mrs. Ross McDonnell (left), and sisters Anne Marie, 18, Susan, 15, Margaret, 13, Mary Lou, 10, Teresa, 9 and Nancy, 8.

"IS YOUR WIFE GOING TO HAVE A BABY? BETTER LEAVE HASTINGS COUNTY."

This is an editorial heading in the Belleville Intelligencer!! Not very attractive reading, is it? That is one of the reasons we are working for a County Health Unit, for we feel this is one of the big services a Health Unit would offer. To provide prenatal care for our mothers-to-be, and post-natal care for new babies. Every day in the papers, we read of the advances in the care of the cattle in our district. Do you know that we do not look after the health of our citizens as efficiently as we do the health of our animals?

People, especially the people of Hastings County, are our greatest resource, and to them should be offered the best care that science can give. We spend much money on advertising the beauties of Hastings County, its tourist attractions! Do you realize what poor sanitation can do to a Lake? What an epidemic of hepatitis can do to a community? It is caused by improper sanitation.

T.B. is still with us. How a health unit would help! T.B. tests, school check-ups, health inspections, vision and hearing tests, milk suppliers, restaurants --all these things come under the jurisdiction of a health unit. Some of the other services of (Continued on Page 4)

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

By the time this appears in print, I hope to be lolling arrogantly beside the saltwater swimming pool at the Manoir Richelieu, one of Canada's most lush hideaways for worn-out millionaires and tired-out weekly newspaper editors.

Both will be gathered there this week, the former trying to regain their lost health, the latter trying to ruin theirs, at their annual convention.

At the moment of writing, it's merely a hope. Between here and there lies a nightmare of car rail and boat travel, with a wife and two children.

I have no doubt whatever that the journey will be an unforgettable horror composed of car trouble, missed trains, sea-sickness, forgotten brasserie, mislaid baggage checks, furious wife and lost children. This is the way we always travel.

As usual at our place, the kids and I have taken the preparations for attending this convention with admirable calm, while my wife has been sewing and ironing and swearing softly since the first of July. I swear she'd need three years' advance notice should we ever decide to go to Europe for a month.

What really baffles her is the unpredictability of the good old Canadian weather. Late August can be reeking hot, cold and clammy, or brisk and breezy. Figure three changes of clothes a day for three possible climates, for four people, for seven days, and you have the measure of her misery.

This week while she stews at home getting ready, I'm at a slightly different type of convention. It's a gathering of schoolteachers. Oh, there are similarities. You wear a name badge at each, you eat meals at each. There are receptions at each. Each has a key word: "dedication" at this one and "grass roots" at the newspaper one. There are interminable uplifting speeches at each.

But what a difference in the details! At our first evening at the Manoir, I shall lead down to cocktails my beautiful wife, enhanced by a smashing hair-do and new gown. We shall sip languidly and exchange bons mots with aid friends, while a white-gloved waiter passes the hors d'oeuvres.

Then, wooed by dozens of handsome, young public relations men who want us to sit at their table, we shall proceed in stately style to the Lobster Thermidor and the Baked Alaska.

Things weren't quite like that at my first meal at the teacher's gathering. My dinner companion was pleasant, but not exciting and by no stretch of the imagination beautiful. He didn't even get a new hair-do for the convention. He was my roommate, director of the technical wing in a high school.

None of this decadent dining at seven. Dinner was at five-thirty. We washed our hands and went down to wafers and beans, followed by a palatable, but not quite exotic, dessert of canned cherries.

At the Manoir, great public institutions like finance companies will vie with one another to provide pre-dinner, receptions and post-dinner convivialities for the editors.

At this convention, the only reception was a coffee-and-cookies affair at 9:30 p.m., and the guests paid for the grub.

At the Manoir, each evening will produce its small parties, followed by dancing and entertainment in the handsome casino. At this one, evening entertainment consists of a walk around the grounds, followed by a couple hundred other lonely teachers who miss their families, and ends with a coffee from the automat in the basement.

Teachers and weekly editors are good and useful people, and have much in common, though they often hate each other's innards. Both try to inform, educate and raise the standards of society. But when it comes to conventions, though I'll probably be healthier after the teacher's affair, I'll have a lot more fun with the editors.

Fort Henry stands high on a promontory just east of the city harbour, at Kingston, Ontario, bristling with mounted cannon and defended by all the paraphernalia of early nineteenth century fortification. Originally built to fend off invading American forces during the war of 1812, it now welcomes an annual invasion of visitors from south of the border.

During its heyday, the Fort was the "Citadel of Upper Canada", and was so referred to by the great Duke of Wellington, foremost British soldier of his day. Kingston, strategically located on Lake Ontario at the confluence of the St. Lawrence River and the Rideau Canal, was the site of the Royal Navy Dockyard on Lake Ontario. As long as Kingston was held secure and the St. Lawrence supply-line kept open, the entire region of Upper Canada, extending to the Niagara Frontier, was safe.

Construction of the first Fort began in 1812 and continued until 1820.

Even when the war ended, British military leaders felt Canada's defences needed strengthening in the event of future hostilities.

In 1825 the British Government gave authorization to proceed with a second and stronger Fort Henry and demolition of the existing Fort began in 1832. A new Fort was erected with limestone from nearby quarries. The work, involving considerable engineering skill, was done partly by local contractors, under the direction of the Royal Engineers. By 1836 the body of the new redoubt was completed and the garrison moved into its new quarters.

In military terms the structure of Fort Henry is a casemated redoubt, the main portion consisting of a pentagonal figure, the three-sided front of which faces inland towards the north. Casemates, glacis, counter-scarp, caponniere, parapets, ramparts, reverse fires, advanced battery and deep branch ditches—all the elements of permanent 19th century military fortification are to be seen at the Fort.

The interior parade, accessible only by a drawbridge, is surrounded by officers' quarters, casemated men's barracks and stores. Despite abortive attempts, Fort Henry has never been attacked—its story is that of a successful military deterrent in a long-continuing cold war.

Many famous British regiments were stationed at the Fort from 1813 to 1870 and native Canadian troops from 1870 to 1890. As the years passed, its defences became obsolete and as international relations improved, the Fort's position lessened in importance. It gradually fell into decay and by 1936 had deteriorated to a mass of rubble. In that year, under a joint scheme of the federal and Ontario governments, the painstaking work of restoration began.

On August 1, 1938, the renovated Fort was officially opened to the pub. Except for the war years, when it was used as an internment camp, it has greeted visitors from all parts of the world. Within its storied walls are impressive collections of antique weapons, specialized collections of infantry, cavalry, artillery and naval arms and equipment, as well as authentically refurbished living quarters and re-activated artificers' shops.

With the colourful addition of the Fort Henry Guard, it is a "living museum" of Canada's military history.

Poor wheel alignment can cause tires to drag sideways 20 to 40 feet in every mile travelled. This wastes gasoline and leads to expensive and dangerous deterioration of tires, says the Ontario Safety League. Check your car. Check accidents!

"Canada produces almost everything"

If your home is not complete without a hippo, you'll have to import one. Search as you will, not a hippo can be found from St. John's to Victoria.

But almost everything else can, and the wise buyer knows that every dollar spent on Canadian goods keeps Canadians working.

To keep our economy strong, to make better job opportunities, to create jobs for those young people coming on to the labour market, we all must be "label conscious." Before you buy, look at the label. If the price, design and quality are right, buy the product that is made here.

If each of us could divert just $2.00 a week from imported to domestic goods, the result could total $600,000,000 in Canada in one year! And that could help create 60,000 new jobs!

Buy a hippo if you must, but for almost everything else, check the label before you buy. It's in your own best interest. You help yourself, your neighbour and the whole province by giving Canadian products the opportunity to serve and satisfy you.

Diary of a Vagabond

That's For Sure

The people of the Atlantic Provinces have an odium all their own. I found them loquacious, friendly and usually completely uninhibited. They seldom waste a conversation on few words when many will do, but their manner of detailing or praising their particular part of this country is appealing and sincere. One of their most descriptive phrases has become slang by usage, yet where could one hear a more convincing tribute, expressing their loyalty and love of this land, than a sentence describing its virtues that inevitably ends with "that's for sure".

Maritimers and the people who populate Newfoundland are never hurried, flurried, pessimistic or easy to anger. They are staunch in their family relationships, devout in their religious beliefs and honest to a fault. Being among them as I have been for the past several weeks, this assessment of my fellow Canadians has not changed from one eastern province to another. It cannot be the sea that influences their nature for the sea is restless, demanding, cruel and ever-changing. For the most part, those whom I have met were raised, educated and settled in their careers within a small radius of the place where they were born. Those who seek farther fields never lose their hankering to return "down east".

This contentment with their own area could be one reason why those of us who reside west of the seacoast provinces have so wrongly considered them trailing in the vanguard of progress. Too many uninformed Canadians believe the economy of the Atlantic provinces depends entirely on fish and forests, that because of today's extensive use of oil, their coal mines have all been abandoned and that their manufacturing potential is confined to tartans and hooked rugs.

During the next several weeks I hope to be able to project a picture of industry and modernization of this, the oldest part of Canada; its potential in this country's economic future and at the same time, capture in words the legends, romance, superstitions and faith constantly expressed in the lives of these individuals.

Varied Undertakings

Where else, but in these Atlantic provinces, would you hear of the proprietor of a snack bar selling his recipe for fried clams for $30,000; where the legends of an Indian God are creating an industry for the Mic Mac race totalling a payroll of $1,000 a month; where three or more thousand tons of coal are mined daily at Princess Colliery from under the ocean at Sydney Mines and where, among other contracts, 12,000 rails are being produced from the open hearths of Dosco's steel plant at Sydney, for the Mexican National Railways?

It was at Moncton, New Brunswick, that the first CN hump yard for facilitating the make-up of freight trains was put into operation. The greatest paper mills in the country belch their sulphur fumes and spew their pulp from great vats onto the rolling machines that whiz seeming endless miles of paper destined for the Press of the continent, or for containers for the nation's domestic supplies.

I have travelled thousands of miles over tracks, highways and sea to find the stories I have to relate. Not once was I disappointed, my ardour dampened or my anticipation dulled.

44 FATALITIES ACROSS CANADA DURING WEEKEND

Forty-four persons died in accidents in Canada during the weekend, 30 of them on the highways.

CWNA HELD ANNUAL CONVENTION AT MURRAY BAY

News is important to Canadians.

This is one indisputable conclusion which can be drawn from the growth in numbers of weekly newspapers in Canada.

Fifty years ago, the popularity of weekly newspapers was perhaps more understandable. The resident of a small town had infrequent access to magazines or metropolitan newspapers. There was no radio; no television.

Nowadays, the resident of Salmon River, Wetaskiwin, Transcona, Trenton, Rimouski or Truro probably gets a daily newspaper from the nearest city and watches television and listens to radio. But he still supports the weekly newspapers; they are growing constantly in both numbers and circulation. And the only selling point of the weekly newspaper is that it carries lots of local news.

The editors and publishers of weekly newspapers, currently meeting at Murray Bay, Quebec, for the 44th annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association are old hands at news gathering. They will devote their business sessions to a wide range of topics as befits modern businessmen. But in the end, their main objectives will be to supply the healthy craving that Canadians have for more and more news.

COUNCIL WARNS OF LABOUR DAY PERILS

Over the last six years, road traffic in Canada over the Labour Day weekend has taken an average of 54 human lives. The Canadian Highway Safety Council has expressed the fear that the 1963 Labour Day weekend toll will not be less.

The same holiday in 1962 saw 71 people killed in Canadian traffic during the 78 hours between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday. CHSC expected Ontario and Quebec each would account for at least 20 of the Labour Day weekend road fatalities.

"The real tragedy of this slaughter," said W. Arch Bryce, executive director of the Council, "is that it is needless." Deaths and injuries, he said, could be drastically reduced if each motorist:

1. Refused to face the issue and stayed out of his vehicle.
2. Drove as he would have others drive.
3. Avoided becoming over-tired.
4. Made sure his vehicle was in the best possible condition.
5. Fully realized he was not immune to road accidents.

SHOWER

A shower and dance was held for the newly-married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Pack, in the Eldorado Orange Hall on Friday night, Aug. 16th.

Everyone spent an enjoyable evening, participating in round and square dancing. Later Mrs. Russell Empey read the following address: Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Pack.

Dear Doug, and Dorothy:

As the days roll by, we are once again happy to gather here to honour still another Prince Charming and his Cinderella.

May we congratulate you, Doug, and Dorothy on your recent marriage.

Through the years Doug, you have been a faithful playmate, friend and community helper. Even though you have moved from the community we trust that you will often return to renew friendships.

Although Dorothy, we have not had the pleasure of knowing you for any great time, we trust that you will prove to be a faithful and most helpful helpmate. And we trust that in the future we shall all become better acquainted with you.

And now as you two set out on the road of life together, we pray that you may never lose heart, be happy and gay, even though the road may have a few disappointing turns. We ask that you receive these gifts with glad hearts, as a token of the love and esteem of your friends and neighbours of Eldorado, Malone and Marmora.

Signed: George Robinson, Lorne Chambers, Percy Blakely, Fred Bailey, Garry Kelly, Mrs. Chas. Kelly, Mrs. George Empey, Raeburn Robinson, George Whyte, Allan Franks.

The gifts were an easy-boy chair and footstool, coffee table, end tables and small kitchen utensils.

Speeches thanking everyone, were given by both the bride and groom. Lunch was served and dancing resumed.

TRUCK PLOWS INTO CATTLE, FOUR KILLED

John Lanigan, R. R. 2, Stirling, is short four head of cattle after an accident near his farm Friday.

Mr. Lanigan was driving his herd across the Ridge Road, two miles east of Stirling, in heavy fog, when a truck loaded with logs plowed into the cattle.

PRICE OF SUGAR DROPPED 20 CENTS BAG

Three major Montreal sugar refineries Thursday dropped the price of refined sugar by 20 cents to $10.80 a 100-lb. bag.

Wednesday the refineries cut the price by 30 cents. Initially two companies lowered the price by 25 cents and the third by 30 cents, but the two later matched the 30-cent reduction.

This is the lowest the price has been since last Feb. 25th, when it was $10.80. On Jan. 1, it was $9.10.

The price has changed 59 times since the beginning of the year—38 increases and 21 decreases. Last May 23, the price was the highest since 1920, $17.75 a 100-pound bag.

EARLY PROCESSING BEST FOR PEACHES

To preserve all the good qualities of Ontario-grown peaches, they should be processed as soon as purchased. Food experts at Macdonald Institute, Guelph, suggest you freeze the peaches for future good eating.

Here is a quick freezing method: Choose the varieties—Veteran, Envoy and Redhaven—for most successful freezing. Select the fruit carefully, so that you have firm, ripe fruit. Wash the fruit to remove soil and sprays.

Dip the fruit into boiling water for about one minute, to loosen the skins. Dip into cold water, then slip skins off with the hand or paring knife. Remove pits from peaches.

Quickly place peach halves into a weak brine (1 teaspoon salt per qt. of water) to prevent discoloration of the fruit. A few ice cubes keep the water cold.

Slice peaches now, for best flavor when eaten. Mix sugar, about 1 lb. for every 5 lbs. of fruit, with a small amount of ascorbic acid. Ascorbic acid is available as a powder at drug stores. One-quarter teaspoon of ascorbic acid to every 4 cups of sugar is sufficient to prevent the browning of the peaches. Add sugar and ascorbic acid mixture to sliced fruit and stir gently to dissolve sugar in peach juice.

Quickly fill freezer containers or sealers with sugared peach slices. Leave about 3-4-inch space at the top of containers for the expansion of freezing food. Freeze finished packages immediately.

HEALTH UNIT

ferred are: Communicable disease control, Mental Health, Dental Hygiene, Nutrition, so important, and a general Health Education. The Canadian Arthritic and Rheumatic Society, the Hastings T.B. Association, the Children's Aid Society, just to name a few, have given a County Health Unit their endorsement, realized how much greater could their services be, when incorporated in such a unit. The staffing of a Public Health Unit is done by the Provincial Government, in co-operation with the local Council. It has been suggested that (excluding Belleville and Trenton) with a population of 43,000, the staff of a Hastings County Health Unit would be: one (1) Medical Officer of Health, three (3) Sanitary Inspectors, nine (9) Public Health Nurses and a clerical staff of three (3).

All medical personnel, including the inspectors, are especially trained and must meet Government requirements. In Hastings, we have 29 municipalities, each with its own reeve, a population of 43,000 people which is serviced by 29 local Boards of Health, under control of 12 Medical Health Officers (about 3,500 people per Officer). Each of these Health Officers is a Doctor with a large personal practice, many times covering a huge rural area, and has no time to devote to extra public health services. This we can understand, and the formation of a Health Unit would increase tremendously, the work they could do.

Always, comes the question—What will it cost? Less than the price of three packages of cigarettes, per person a year.

The Provincial Government provides 50 p.c. of the cost, also many of the initial requirements. With 43,000 population, the suggested budget would be $86,000.00, and of this $43,000.00 to be financed by Hastings County. Of that $43,000.00, special grants are made by the Federal Government in consideration of special services. When one considers the cost of 29 Boards of Health, 12 Medical Health Officers, plus the grants to individual organizations which could amalgamate with a health unit, the cost is brought down a great deal less and could be roughly worked out to 73c per person per year. A very cheap rate for Health Insurance, don't you think?

All we ask, is to give it your most serious thought and consideration. Ask your family—ask your friends what they think? Ask your teachers in the schools, ask your women's clubs and organizations. Ask your Senior Citizens, for they, too, will benefit.

Dr. Gordon Martin of the Provincial Department of Health has consented to come down to the Hastings County Council Meeting in August to answer all questions.

For the sake of our children, our future population of Hastings County, support a County Health Unit. I have been asked by the Hastings County Council to appear at their meeting in August with all the information which I can obtain regarding this project. This I have been working on and hope that I will receive your fullest co-operation.

Thank you.
Yours sincerely,
(Mrs.) Winnifred Donaldson, R.N.

As a practicing Physician in the Village of Madoc, I would like to add my comments to the above:

From being acting M.O.H., Madoc, for the month of August, I have gained new insight into the vital need for a County Health Unit. The infectious disease conditions in our new Public School here are poor. Out in the new Township School they are scandalous. People are paying money out for treatment of conditions which they should not have had in the first place. It's impossible for a busy general practitioner to carry on a general practice and perform his M. O. H. duties properly—there just isn't time. Mrs. Donaldson deserves a lot of credit. Almost single-handedly, she has waged a campaign to stir up interest in a County Health Unit. She has been received with varying degrees of politeness by the different Reeves and by the different M.O. H.'s. A couple of our M.O.H.'s have been inexcusably rude to her.

The Unit will benefit us in so many ways. Several of us are going as a delegation to County Council on Sept. 3rd. Try to talk to your Reeves and show them that Hastings County has a right to be progressive. Signed,
George L. Mullen, M. D.
(Acting) Medical Health Officer.

MR. & MRS. S. MITTS HAPPILY WED 60 YEARS

At 90 years Sylvanus Mitts, of Ivanhoe, is a man proud of his abilities, attached to the outdoors and an active life.

Monday was one of the proudest days of that life — spent, as the past 60 years have been with, in quiet attachment to his wife, Eliza.

On their farmstead flanking the Ivanhoe Road, three miles east of the Madoc County Road, the Mitts' together marked 60 years of marriage with sprightly reminiscing and slightly partial comments on current life.

"People are about finished these days when they are 65," says Mr. Mitts. "Everything you do today you sit down at it. They hardly ever see 70."

He has more than the longevity granted by 90 summers, winters, springs and autumns not forgotten — to support his theory that physical activity and fresh air are a boon to lifelong heartiness. Today, he himself is an animated picture of good health — cheery, interested and interesting and physically active.

"And I've got lots in the woods to do this winter," he states.

His outlook is shared by his wife who evokes the spirit of the pioneer as she talks with her husband.

Eliza Mitts will be 83 next December and echoes her husband's sentiments entirely, pointing to her own early days as a farm-wife on the concessions of Huntingdon township.

"I could gather a bag of grain better than anyone on the barn floor," she says. "Take it into Stirling or Madoc to be ground and bring it back again. Today they can't follow that way of life."

Mr. Mitts recalls the winter early in their marriage when he himself went shantying in the northern reaches of Hastings county. Until the following spring his wife handled a farm that counted, among other things, 21 head of cattle and three horses.

In fact, she was called on to look forward to much exercise out-of-doors. Being on the move he considers paramount.

Besides logging from shanties, Mr. Mitts also spent much of his earlier life in quarrying. Starting in 1889, he worked in limestone quarries near Crookston. (Now defunct, he says, they were put out of business by stone-cutters' wage demands.) As he became experienced he was sent to various stone-construction projects in charge of work gangs. These included work on Montreal's Victoria Bridge in 1897, the Cartier bridge and similar other jobs between Hamilton and Niagara in 1900-02.

As a logger, he remembers working an hour schedule of six-on, six-off when lumber was sent downriver to Belleville, Deseronto and Trenton.

"I'd like to see anyone standing on logs for 12 hours a day," he challenges.

Between times there was always the farming.

The couple were married in the Ridge Road home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam McCaughan. Born in Crookston, Mr. Mitts and his bride later farmed just east of Ivanhoe, then moved in 1900 to their present farmstead.

On that property Mr. Mitts still looks forward to much exercise out-of-doors. Being on the move he considers paramount.

"Why once, I couldn't sit for half an hour on a pony. I used to get tired and get down to walk. Even sitting behind a plow was worse than walking."

Sunday the couple were given a family tribute at a picnic at the Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area. About 80 attended.

THE EDITOR

Dear Mr. Editor:

I wonder if you would be so kind as to print this letter for me. I am trying to let the people of Hastings County know that I am presenting a request to the Hastings County Council on Sept. 3rd at 2 p.m. for the formation of a Health Unit for Hastings County. If the people of the County would like this Health Unit, will they please come to Council on that date or write to their reeve and let him know? We need Public Health Nurses to visit our schools regularly to do school health inspections, give immunizations, check vision and hearing. They hold child health conferences, do pre and post-natal visits and counselling. Supervise school sanitation, advise on services for handicapped children. Health teaching is a big part of their job. Control of communicable diseases, mental health, diabetes are helped. T.B. patients are supervised, dental health is a part of their services.

There are many people camping and renting cottages around our lakes; control of sanitation by properly trained sanitary inspectors is another aspect of a Health Unit. Our neighbouring counties have Health Units; there are 37 counties in the Province of Ontario with Health Units, and a county like Hastings, which is trying to attract tourists, should have a proper Community Health Program.

One Medical Officer of Health for the County with his staff, instead of twelve local Medical Officers with private practices who are too burdened to carry out all their duties. The costs of a Health Unit come out of taxes, half of which the Provincial Government pays, and the rest the County pays for. Some of the money which is being paid out now for various services will help pay for the Health Unit.

The women of the County know what a service like this means to their families. So get behind it and speak up for yourselves.

Thanking you for your consideration, I am yours sincerely,
Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson, R. N.

INCREASING

There were 24 drownings in Canada over the 1962 Labour Day weekend in a total of 100 accident fatalities, according to the National Safety League of Canada. NSL states that both drownings and traffic fatalities have been on the increase in 1963 on national holidays. "Unless more care is exercised in the prevention of accidents," warned Gay McLaren, general manager of the League, "the 1962 Labour Day total will be exceeded this year." NSL's warning comes in the wake of the disastrous Dominion Day weekend toll of 73 in the water and 81 in traffic.

KITCHEN CHATTER

SUMMER SMORGASBORD

An invitation to a cool meal is provided by a novel idea—a summer salad served smorgasbord style. Though novel, this idea is simple. It consists of bringing a big bowl of crisp, mixed greens, the dressing, and the "go-alongs" to the table in separate containers. The greens and the dressing are tossed at the table and served into individual bowls, then the guests help themselves to a selection of the other ingredients.

A nice point about this type of summer main course is that the hostess can expand or minimize it to suit the number of guests. Moreover, family and guests enjoy making their own salads. Fish is always a must at a smorgasbord and so among the foods offered there should be a selection of seafood items. Canned and marinated fishery products are a good choice because they are ready for instant use. Here are a few suggestions from the Consumer Branch of the Department of Fisheries of Canada.

SEAFOOD SELECTIONS

CRAB OR LOBSTER: Drain the meat and break it into bite-sized chunks, removing any bits of cartilage which may be present. Serve nestled on watercress and garnished with tomato wedges.

MARINATED HERRING ROLLMOPS: Drain and serve bordered with thinly cut orange slices. Garnish with crisp onion rings, cut paper thin.

SHRIMP: Drain. Remove the dark sand vein if this has not been done. Rinse with cold water. Serve on crisp cucumber slices.

SARDINES: Drain several cans of Canadian sardines packed in oil. Place in a shallow dish and cover with full strength vinegar. Chill for about half an hour. Drain well. Place on serving dish and surround with overlapping slices of hard-cooked egg. Garnish with green onions.

SURPRISE FLAVOR IN SEAFOOD MOLD

On a warm summer day, launch lunch or supper speedily with a cool, make-ahead, molded salad such as Atlantic Banks Mousse. This salad is quick and easy to assemble and, though elegance itself, it is inexpensive. A surprise feature is that the principal fish ingredient, low

Atlantic banks Mousse

- 1 can (7 oz.) chicken haddie OR 1½ cups flaked, cooked fish
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup cold water

- 1 tspn. prepared horseradish

- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 1 can (3 oz.) lobster paste

SALMON SALAD WITH FRENCH FLAIR

Garden-fresh green cabbage, shredded and bound with a tangy dressing, makes good eating anytime. Add rosy chunks of canned salmon and chopped, hard-cooked egg then serve from a crisp, hollowed out cabbage or a bowl lined with greens, and you have an attractive hot-weather main dish which is delicious and different.

This easy, casual sort of Salmon and cabbage vinaigrette

- 1 can (7½ oz.) salmon
- 2 cups shredded cabbage
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- 2 tbspsn. cider vinegar
- 6 tbspsn. salad oil
- 1 tspn. salt
- ½ spn. dry mustard
- ½ tspn. pepper
- 2 tbspsn. capers

Drain salmon and break into bite-sized chunks. In a mixing gelatin in cold water then dissolve over low heat. Combine dairy sour cream and seasonings. If using chicken haddie, salt is not needed. If using home-cooked fish, add ½ teaspoon salt. Blend in mayonnaise and lobster paste. Add fish and dissolve gelatin. Mix thoroughly. Spoon into a lightly oiled, 3-cup mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on serving platter and garnish with greens. Makes four servings.

salad is a breeze to make. Toss it with a prepared French dressing or, for a gourmet touch, make "sauce vinaigrette", the true French dressing. In France there are countless variations of this dressing. The recipe which follows makes one which is tart yet mellow and expertly seasoned. It was supplied by the Consumer Branch of the Department of Fisheries of Canada.

bowl combine cabbage, eggs, onion, parsley, and salmon. In a small bowl combine remaining ingredients listed. Just before serving, pour the dressing over the salmon-cabbage mixture and toss gently but thoroughly. Serve in a bowl lined with lettuce, or in a cabbage shell made by hollowing out a firm cabbage with a sharp knife to leave a shell three or four leaves thick. Makes four servings.

COMMEMORATIVE STAMP ISSUE

Sir Martin Frobisher

Although Sir Martin Frobisher was destined to follow in the wake of other great explorers in his search for the Northwest Passage to the Orient, he was certainly no less adventuresome. Had he chosen to sail a southerly course, rather than into the impenetrable icefields of the north, perhaps the chapters of history would have unfolded quite differently.

Sir Martin was born about the year 1535 and raised in Normanston, Yorkshire, England. For a period of some sixteen years, before his ambition was finally realized in 1576, he advocated a search for the Northwest Passage. With the assistance of the Earl of Warwick, Frobisher was placed in command of an expedition consisting of two twenty-five ton ships, the "Gabriel" and the "Michael", as well as a ten ton pinnace. They weighed anchor at Blackwall on the 7th of June.

During the crossing, the pinnace was lost in a storm and the crew of the "Michael" turned back. Frobisher, however, pressed forward, until the shores of Labrador were sighted on the 28th of July. A few days later Frobisher Bay was reached and the explorers mistakenly thought they had found a strait leading to the open sea. Adverse weather conditions and ice impeded further progress and he was finally forced to return home.

Sir Martin's exploits created great interest in the commercial world, especially the gold ore. This interest paved the way for the fitting out of a better equipped expedition. The Queen loaned the services of the Royal Navy and subscribed a considerable sum towards the project. Frobisher was then made High Admiral of all lands and waters that might be discovered by him.

On May 26th, 1577, the second expedition set sail from Blackwall. Miners, refiners and other skilled personnel were included in the complement of 120 men. Two months later they landed on the south shore of Frobisher Bay and took possession of the land in the name of the Queen. Unfortunately, much of their time was spent in collecting practically worthless ore rather in the pursuit of further explorations. However, on their return to England consideration was given to the setting up of a third and more ambitious expedition which was to attempt the establishment of a colony as well.

On the 31st of May, 1587 the expedition, consisting of fifteen vessels, left Harwich. Less than a month later they reached Greenland and in mid-summer, Frobisher Bay was sighted. Once again the ice, made treacherous by the stormy sea, drove the small fleet up through Hudson Strait. After proceeding only a few miles up the strait they retraced their course and entered Frobisher Bay. Some attempt was made to prospect and to find a settlement but the whole venture proved most unrewarding. On the last day of August, they sailed for home.

This ended Frobisher's career as an explorer as his services were employed by the Navy. In 1585 he was placed in command of the "Primrose" as Vice-Admiral to Sir Francis Drake and three years later was knighted at sea for his services in the defeat of the Spanish Armada. Sir Martin was mortally wounded in the siege at Brest in 1594 and died on the 22nd of November at Plymouth.

This stamp, another in the explorer series, is intended to focus attention on and to promote greater interest in the history of Canada's northland. Frobisher, by today's standards perhaps a rough and rigid disciplinarian, undoubtedly rates as an outstanding seaman and a great naval hero who did much to create interest in the then unknown lands of the North American continent.

QUICK CANADIAN QUIZ

1. What English-born missionary spent forty years in Canada building up a world-famed medical mission?
2. What is the annual average cost to the Canadian motorist of license fees and gasoline taxes?
3. What Canadian city is the only walled city on the North American continent?
4. Of Canada's total $12.4 billion foreign trade in 1962, what part was trade within the Commonwealth?
5. Which is greater in Canada, the amount of public funds spent annually on education, or the amount spent on social security and welfare?

ANSWERS: 1. Schools take about 12 cents on the dollar of public spending; social security and welfare 25 to 30 cents. 3. Quebec. 1. Sir Wilfrid Grenfell 4. $2.1 billion. 2. Estimated average cost is $96 per year.

ROILER TROUBLE IN U.S.

A significant buildup is currently taking place in U.S. broiler hatching operations, a recent U.S.D.A. report indicates. Pullet chicks added to broiler hatchery flocks were up from the previous year by 22 percent in April and 40 percent in May.

Agricultural officials are concerned that the buildup may duplicate the high production and low prices which prevailed during much of 1961.

Experts predict that broiler prices this fall will average below the 15.6c of a year ago. This price level, however, is not likely to be low enough to discourage further expansion. As a result, the real problem would not occur until late 1963 and early 1964.

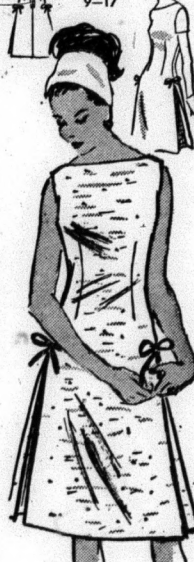

LABOR INCOME

In the 1945-62 period labor income in Canada rose from $4.9 billion to $20.4 billion, while the number of persons with jobs rose from 3,411,000 to 6,451,000.

GIRL IN SPACE MAKES HISTORY

Chalk one more up on the space scoreboard for those imaginative Russians, who this time have really brought on the "dog days" for the American scientific male. The invasion of space by the lipstick-and-powder set in the plummy form of one Valentina Tereshkova, Russian cosmonette, will hardly ease things on the home front for the average U.S. space scientist.

Particularly if the wife is inclined to be a bit pushy about the role of womanhood in the scheme of things—earthly and heavenly.

And it didn't help that the Russians, from an ample list of 365 days, had to choose Father's Day for this particular feat.

"I still think we have a darned good space program," said a Cape Canaveral missile worker. "But you have to give the Russians credit for imagination."

The one possibility that seemed most worrisome was the likelihood that, sometime during the flight, cosmonaut Lt.-Col. Valery Bykovsky and the cosmonette would manoeuvre their Vostok spaceships together and link them up.

Such an accomplishment would put the U.S. a full three years behind Russia, and would seriously jeopardize the success of this nation's $35 billion bid to land the first men on the moon.

End dual management to hotel Vancouver

S.S. Chambers, general manager of Canadian National Hotels, announced here last week that arrangements have been completed whereby the CPR will be withdrawing from participation in the management and operation of the CN-owned Hotel Vancouver. Since the opening of the hotel in 1939, it has been operated jointly by the two railway companies.

Coincident with the termination of the joint operation, Canadian National will proceed as quickly as possible with a major plan for modernization and rehabilitation of the Hotel Vancouver, Mr. Chambers said. This will be done to increase the hotel's competitive position.

SWIMMERS BEWARE

At the risk of spoiling some of your enjoyment at the beach or lakeside cottage, here is a reminder about water safety. Did you know the majority of Canadian drowned each summer are people who know how to swim? Non-swimmers take fewer chances, stay away from fast-running water and are more wary of boats.

Swimmers who drown are most often unexpectedly dumped into the water, sometimes with a blow on the head from an overturning boat or canoe. Thus their ability to swim is no proof against drowning. Adults who carefully outfit their children in life jackets when talking to their boats, but scorn to wear one themselves, are all potential drowning victims.

Proponents of life jackets for water safety have long urged hunters, fishermen, yachtsmen and all who work or play near water to wear jackets for their own protection. They have urged most unsuccessfully. Besides the false security inherent in an ability to swim, most people dislike life jackets because of their bulkiness, feeling they restrict their activities.

Now, an answer to this problem has appeared in the form of a new light, compact life-jacket that looks like nothing more than a plastic necklace loosely tied by straps which cross around the back. It weighs 15 ounces, is simple to wear, completely unrestricting and small enough to pack in a very small haversack.

A revolutionary Canadian invention, the new Tul automatic life jacket, was demonstrated recently to members of the armed services, industry and the press. One after another, some fully clothed, fell or jumped into a swimming pool. As each broke the water, the plastic necklace erupted into a full-blown lifejacket. Besides inflating instantly the Tul jacket turns the wearer over on his back and holds his face out of the water. This feature means that even if unconscious the jacket will hold him afloat.

The demonstration created great excitement among promoters of water safety and it did more than that. Government orders for the new jacket have already been placed choosing the Canadian invention from among designs submitted from all over the world. Besides being a boon to bridge builders, the marine services, and sportsmen, the jacket is expected to help save the lives of hundreds of ordinary citizens because it eliminates many of the objections most hold to safety jackets.

One fascinating aspect of the new invention, and we feel a fitting one—is that the president of the company introducing this safety device is a woman, Mrs. Marion Baker—but more about her later.

FROM FANTASY TO REALITY: A 32-year-old Sheffield engineer and father of three children Mr. Alan Stewart is pictured "astride" his "ornithopter". Built in the garden of his Sheffield, England, home, Mr. Stewart hopes to achieve the first ever man-powered flight over one mile with his frail craft. If he succeeds, he will win $14,000. This is the prize offered by the Royal Aeronautical Society of Great Britain for the first person to achieve man-powered flight over one mile. The bird-machine has been designed and developed over the past four years and Mr. Stewart hopes his tests this summer will culminate in a prize-winning effort. The "ornithopter" has a 14-foot wing span and by a pedalling action it is hoped to simulate a bird in flight. The prototype has cost over $280 to construct.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-salt) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get FASTEETH at drug counters everywhere.

Resigned United Kingdom war minister John Profumo is to be cut-out of a color movie made to stimulate army recruiting, it was reported. The Daily Express gave the name of the movie as "This is Our Life" and said the sequence to be dropped showed Profumo making an inspection.

Tony Randall has been signed by MGM to head the cast of "The Seven Faces of Dr. Lao", to be produced and directed by George Pal. Film is set to go before the cameras in Hollywood shortly with script by Charles Beaumont based on Charles Finney's novel, "The Circus of Dr. Lao". Randall's most recent MGM release was the highly successful "Boys Night Out" in which he starred with Kim Novak who is currently in Dublin for "Of Human Bondage"; and Jim Garner, who recently completed the soon-to-be-released "The Wheeler Dealers".

Stuart Whitman has been signed to star in a suspense movie, "Signpost to Murder". Whitman, an Academy Award nominee in 1962 for "The Mark", recently completed "The Day and The Hour", opposite Simone Signoret.

Impending motherhood has played havoc with Carol Burnett's theatre and TV plans. Carol, now Mrs. Joe Hamilton, expects her first child in February so her proposed Broadway musical has been postponed until spring. This, in turn, has forced postponement of a Columbia Broadcasting System plan for a Carol Burnett series for the 1964-65 season.

From Spain comes word that the film drama, "The L-shaped Room", was given a standing ovation at the International Festival in San Sebastian. It stars Leslie Caron, who won the "Best actress of the year" award from the British Film Academy for her outstanding performance in the picture. Miss Caron attended the showing in San Sebastian, and made a big personal hit at the reception which followed.

Trees and bugs work together

Peach trees and "friendly" insects appear to have their own mutual assistance program.

Lady beetles, lacewing flies and a number of other beneficial insects help protect the trees by attacking mites, aphids and parasites of the Oriental fruit moth.

In return, the trees provide an important source of food for these insects.

The food is actually a sticky secretion—similar to the nectar of the blossoms—which is produced by small glands in the leaves, says W. L. Putman, of the federal research laboratory at Vineland Station, Ontario.

Many harmful insects and mites are abundant only in some years or at certain times in the season. When the pests are scarce, their enemies either starve or fly away to new areas.

The peach leaf secretion provides a reserve food supply to meet the situation, allowing beneficial insects to remain in the orchards, ready for action when the pests again increase in numbers.

In this century the population of the province of British Columbia has grown from 179,000 to 1,690,000.
